Amusement Taxes Cut $33,000,000 by Senate; New Rates Set Forth

Admissions of Less than 50 Cents to Be Exempted from So-Called "Nuisance" Tax—One Per Cent is Rate in New Resolution

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Moving with unexpected alacrity in considering the tax reduction bill, the senate today, without discussion, adopted the senate rates for taxing admission and dues.

Only a handful of senators were on the floor when the amendment which will reduce the amusement tax more than $33,000,000 was adopted.

The amendment subjects admissions to a one per cent tax on each ten cents but tickets costing 50 cents or less were exempted.

Commissioners Ask that Land Be Condemned

A resolution signed by the county commissioners, for condemning and appropriating land for the improvement of Inter-County Highway, No. 339, Section "D" in New Castle-tp. was filed in probate court today.

The commissioners allowed William Williams, owner of the land, $200 as a reasonable amount for compensation and damages for the land appropriated for the improvement. Williams objected to the allowance.

The resolution provides that the necessary land be condemned and appropriated for public use.

Deny Operators Discussed Wage Scale Question

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 25.—Kanawha coal operators denied today that the wage scale question was discussed at a meeting held in Cincinnati yesterday. Freight rates on coal to the lake region in opposition to efforts of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania operators to widen the differential, was the chief topic discussed, according to D. C. Kennedy, secretary of the association.

Mr. Kennedy also asserted the wage issue will not be brot up before the meeting of the board of directors being held today.

Fight Increase in Phone Rates

COLUMBUS, April 25.—A move to thwart the proposal of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., to increase long distance rates was formally before the state utilities commission today.

Attorney Frank J. Gentsch, Cleveland, as a telephone patron, has asked the commission to declare the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., a party to the increased rate plea of the Ohio Bell Company. Gentsch declared that undisputed evidence shows the A. T. & T. to be the parent firm.

Gentsch charged that the A. T. & T. obtains $750,000 a year in excess profits thru the sale of material to the Ohio Bell by the Western Electric Company which is owned by the A. T. & T. according to Gentsch, who said he expected to show that the president rates provide more than adequate return on the property of the A. T. & T.

Wheat Yield to Be Poor in This Co.

Some Farmers, Discouraged by Poor Prospects, Turning Fields to Oats,

"Coshocton-co's 1924 wheat crop cannot make over 75 to 80 per cent of an average production." This was the statement of County Agent Musgrove, Friday, as the result of observations of wheatfields in practically every section of the county.

Farmers in every township of the county are reporting their wheatfields in the worst condition for a number of years. Many fields are being turned into either oats or corn.

Among those who have reported wheat failures are Milton Conrad, of Bedford-tp, who disked his entire acreage seeded to wheat and sowed it in oats.

C. C. Porter, of Keene-tp, also harrowed and seeded to oats a field that was so seriously injured the past winter to justify leaving.

H. B. Lee, of Perry-tp, and B. O. Stingel, of White Eyes-tp, each report having sowed to oats fields that failed to live thru the winter.

Many fields show only a portion of the wheat plants yet living. On these various methods are used. G. T. Vinsel, of Franklin-tp, sowed oats in the thin wheat, with a disk drill, without tilling the soil. By this method the living wheat was saved and a feed crop of mixed oats and wheat may be harvested. E. C. Darling, of Jefferson-tp, reported wheat in a serious condition but left it to observe the outcome.

Only rarely is a field of wheat observed in the county that promises at this time an average crop.

Grocers Bring Suit Against Tiverton Pair

The Akron Grocery Company, thru its attorney, W. F. Garver of Millersburg, has today filed a petition in common pleas court vs. John J. Hyatt and Lulu Hyatt of near Tiverton.

The petition states that on January 21, 1922, the plaintiff commenced action in the common pleas court of Holmes-co for the sum of $206.40, due it upon a promissory note. The defendant has made payments since, it is stated.

It is further alleged that at the January term, 1923, of the same court the plaintiff received a judgment against the defendant for $165.78, the unpaid balance of the note.

The plaintiff says that Hyatt has about 170 acres of land in Coshocton-co, and that except for this property he is unable to pay his debts.

According to the plaintiff's petition, Hyatt, with intent to defraud his creditors, conveyed the property to his wife, Lulu Hyatt.

It is asked that the conveyance be declared null and void, and that the property be administered to satisfy the creditors.

Isleta May Lose Railroad Agcy.

If permission to take such action is granted the railroad company, no tickets can be bought at Isleta and cash fares will have to be paid by all boarding trains there.

A hearing on the application is to be held May 20.

INSURGENTS OPEN FIGHT ON TAX BILL

Seek Heavier Tax on Rich than is Provided in Either Party Plan

BROOKHART LEADS

Declares Mellon Rates are Doomed; No Compromise Sought, He Says

(By KENNETH CLARK)

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Unfurling the battle flag of insurgency, senate progressives today turned their heavy seige guns on both the Republican and Democratic tax reduction bills.

Rallying under the leadership of Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, who is acting commander in the absence of Senator LaFollette, Republican of Wisconsin, the progressives launched a counter offensive with a plan which proposed sur-tax rates even higher than the Democratic maximum of 40 per cent on incomes of more than $500,000.

The insurgent group, numbering between 12 and 14 senators, pledged itself to a surtax maximum of 50 per cent on incomes of $200,000 and over, the same as in the present law. Brookhart announced. The Democratic normal rates of two per cent on incomes up to $4,000, four per cent. between $4,000 and $8,000; and six per cent over $8,000, have been accepted, however, by the Progressives, he added.

"The Mellon tax rates are doom-

SAYS CURTIS THREATENED TO SHOOT COP

COLUMBUS, April 25—Capt. Ben F. Clarke, of the Canton police force, testified today when the Curtis hearing was resumed before Governor Donahey, Clarke said that just before a Stark-co grand jury convened to investigate the Curtis administration, Safety Director E. E. Curtis met him on the street and asked him if he expected to go before the grand jury. Clarke said he replied that he did.

"What are you going to tell them?" the safety director asked.

"I am going to tell them the truth," Clarke said he replied.

"I will deny anything you say," the safety director remarked, according to Clarke.

"Help yourself," countered Clarke.

Clarke, admitting that he was the bone of contention in the Canton police department, said he had received from Frank K. Norwood, federal prohibition enforcement officer in Ohio, a letter complaining about Max Miller's alleged bootlegging in Canton.

Clarke testified that he and other officers raided Miller's home and was rebuked by the safety director for such action.

In another conversation, which Clarke said he had with the safety director, Curtis was credited with saying, "Why don't you have it in for the chief?" Clarke said he replied: "Because the chief is on the level."

"Did you get my note?" the safety director inquired.

"Yes," said Clarke.

"That note still goes," said the safety director.

"Do you mean that you would shoot Homer Moore in Canton patrolman and me?" Clarke asked.

"Yes," replied the safety director. "I might as well go down for a big job as well as a small one, Clarke. I will tell you something. If you go to the grand jury and the investigation falls thru, you and the rest of the boys are going to be in hot water."

Car Load of Fish Expected Friday

A car load of fish to be used in stocking the streams of Coshocton-co is expected to arrive here late Friday afternoon, according to James Fisher, county game protector.

The fish will probably come from the Sandusky hatcheries. Just what varieties the car will contain, and where they will be distributed had not been decided Friday.

Coshocton-co Tops List of 88 Counties in Grazing Acreage

Foremost among Coshocton-co's phases of agriculture is its grazing industry.

With 166,582 acres of its 343,597 total farm land acreage, in pastures, Coshocton-co stands at the head of the list of the 88 counties of the state as a pasture county. Only four other counties of the state—Licking, Muskingum, Highland and Trumbull—have more than 150,000 acres each in pasture land. The Licking and Muskingum co's, with 192,000 and 176,000 acres respectively of pasture land have more pasture land than Coshocton-co. Coshocton's percentage of pastures as compared with its total farm land area is greater than either of the counties joining it on the south. Forty-eight per cent of Coshocton-co's total farm land area is used for grazing purposes only.

In view of the importance of grazing in Coshocton co's agriculture farmers of the county may profitably devote special care to the maintainance of their pasture fields, County Agent G. C. Musgrove said today.

200 Attend Sessions—Mrs. John Feth of Cincinnati is Chosen President—Review of Society's Work Given—Delegates Leave for Homes Today

What is declared to have been one of the most successful meetings of the Ohio branch of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant church came to a close at the local Methodist Protestant church, Walnut and Eighth-sts, yesterday afternoon. The meeting was a two-day affair, starting Wednesday morning. The sessions were held according to the schedule for two days and one night.

About 200 attended, including the 47 delegates, visitors and pastors.

Late Thursday afternoon the election of officers was held the results of which follow president, Mrs. John Feth, Cincinnati, Ohio; first vice president, Mrs. R. C. Dean, Pennsville, Ohio; second vice president, Mrs. Paul McConnell, Steubenville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lydia Copper, Lewistown, Ohio; recording secretary, Mrs. O. W. Cole, Jenera, Ohio; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Knight, Columbus, and auditor, Mrs. J. D. Groff, Columbus.

The Wednesday evening session was especially interesting to the local society inasmuch as various officers gave a review of the work being done by the W. H. M. S. The work in the school at Pine Ridge, Kentucky, has been considered especially worthy, and a report of the school given by one speaker showed that great progress is being made. Other work done by the society was shown to be the founding of a children's home at High Point, North Carolina, a mission in Pittsburgh, a work for tubercular men at Weaverville, North Carolina, and a girls' home at Baltimore, Maryland.

Delegates in attendance from various points in the state, were leaving today for their homes.

ROUND WORLD

DUBLIN, April 25—It was semi officially forecast today that the Free State will fall unless it makes a vigorous fight upon the Ulster frontier issue.

LONDON, April 25.—A Bombay dispatch to the Daily Express quoted the Nationalist leader Mohandas Gandhi as saying: "India must have the right as a nation to commit suicide if she want to. Only then can we appreciate what freedom and responsibility are."

PARIS, April 25.—The foreign office today confirmed that Premier Theunis of Belgium will confer on reparations with Premier Poincare Monday.

Internal War Threatened by Irish Dispute

LONDON, April 25.—A delicate situation, containing the possibility of hostilities, has arisen as a result of the breakdown of the Free State-Ulster boundary conference.

It is probable the cabinet will consider the matter within the next few days. Further mediation may be attempted to avert developments fraught with danger of an Irish internal war.

Reports were current the cabinet might ask parliament for special legislation to deal with the situation.

England may appoint a member to the boundary commission. The Free State has appointed a representative but the Ulster government has steadily refused to recognize the commission or have anything to do with it.

There is no provision in the Anglo-Irish treaty for meeting such a contingency.

It is expected that the Free State will force the issue by making immediate demand for the setting up and functioning of the boundary commission.

Ulster fears that if the commission is put to work on the dispute it will make wholesale transfers of territory from Ulster province to the Free State.

A stock of chinaware valued at $65 was donated to the school for use in the home economics department by the pottery management.

Denies Unions Pledged Support to Wis. Senator

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 25.—A statement denying that the Big Four brotherhoods would favor the candidacy of Robert M. LaFollette for president on a third party ticket as reported to have been stated by Warren S. Stone of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers was issued by L. E. Sheppard, president of the order of Railway conductors on his return here today from meetings in the East.

"If Stone is correctly quoted, he spoke for himself alone and not for the brotherhoods," Sheppard said. "Politics was not discussed at the eastern meetings and no action on the board of directors as required for the endorsement of a candidate was taken. We will not indicate whom we shall support until the nominations are made and the platforms announced."

TRIES TO DIG WAY OUT OF CITY PRISON

Warren Frazier Cuts Hole in Plaster with Pocket Knife Last Night

ATTEMPT BLOCKED

Brick Wall Halts Him; Held for Intoxication, Denies Other Allegation

On a charge of intoxication, Warren Frazier, Coshocton, was arrested Thursday afternoon in a barn located in an alley running between Sixth-st and the Central building on Seventh-st.

He was locked in the city prison. At noon today he had not yet been given a hearing, but it is believed he will be arraigned this evening.

While in the jail Thursday night, Frazier, with the aid of a pocket knife, attempted to dig a hole thru the jail wall, police stated. He succeeded in loosening quite a quantity of plaster but evidently gave it up as a bad job when he reached the brick wall. Frazier told police rats had loosened the plaster. A hole two feet in diameter was made.

It was also alleged that Frazier, immediately prior to his arrest, had been in the barn in company with a young girl. He denied this charge, however, saying that the girl had come into the barn, inquired for another man, and had gone out the back door of the building. He declared that he does not know who the girl is.

All efforts to draw anything further from Frazier were futile.

A. A. W. Makes Frequent Use of Telephones

Of all local industrial concerns, The American Art Works makes most frequent use of the telephone, a survey of the daily call record of local factories reveals.

A record of the calls made Wednesday, as kept by the chief operator of the Coshocton Bell Telephone Co., shows that during the day 126 connections were made for the American Art Works. The company has a private exchange operating between the Standard and Tuco plants, so calls from one plant to another are not included in the report.

The Coshocton Glove Co. was second in number of calls, 92 having been made during the day. J. B. Clow & Sons were next with 81 and The Ohio Power Co. followed with 72.

The use made of the telephone by these plants gives some idea of the importance of the device in modern business. In the state of Ohio according to C. J. Johnson, business manager of the local company, there are 500,000 Bell telephones in addition to the many phones operated by local companies all over the state.

The train leaves Coshocton at 6:35 Sunday morning, arriving at Cincinnati at 11:10 central time. It leaves Cincinnati at 6:10 central time.

Aged Coshocton Woman Dies at Home of Niece

A brief illness resulting from the infirmities of age caused the death of Mrs. Margaret Allen, aged 87, at the home of her niece, Mrs. J. A. Lockard, at 407 South Lawn-av, Thursday evening at 10:20 o'clock.

Mrs. Allen's maiden name was Margaret Weir. She was born in April, 1837, near Cookstown, County Tyrone, Ireland. In 1846, with her widowed mother and eight brothers and sisters, all of whom are now dead, she came to this country, traveling the entire distance by water and landing from a canal boat at Canal Lewisville. The family settled in White Eyes tp, where they lived till the death of the mother in 1865. After having lived with her brother and sister in White Eyes tp for a few years, Mrs. Allen was married to Hugh Allen in 1867 and went to live in New Philadelphia.

Mr. Allen died in 1912 and Mrs. Allen came to Fresno, where she lived until four years ago when she went to live with her nephew in West Lafayette. Since last fall she had been making her home with Mrs. Lockard.

When a girl Mrs. Allen joined the United Presbyterian church. She was a member of that church until her marriage when she united with the Presbyterian church at New Philadelphia. Later, in 1913, she became a member of the U. P. church at Fresno, of which church she was a member at the time of her death.

Mrs. Allen leaves the following nieces and nephews: Allen Weir, Mrs. J. A. Lockard, Mary Weir, all of Coshocton, Mrs. Elmer Davis of Fresno, Miss Lizzie Weir of Cleveland, Ella Norman of Chicago Heights, William Boyd, Canal Lewisville, and Laura Huff of Akron.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon in the United Presbyterian church of Fresno, the procession leaving the Lockard home on South Lawn-av at 1 o'clock. Services will be in charge of the Rev. Mr. Tarr.

Interment will be made in Fairview cemetery, Fresno.

Deadlock at National Convention Foreseen with Indiana Senator Expected to Emerge at Head of Ticket—M'Adoo to Be Eliminated

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

NEW YORK, April 25.—Raiston and Smith. It may be the wish is father to the thot but this is the ticket that a number of shrewd Tammany Democrats will emerge ultimately from the catch-as-catch-can convention which the Democrats bring to Madison Square Garden eight weeks hence.

It is the ticket, moreover, that is figuring heaviest in the pre-convention talk and calculation of Tammany's leaders.

It is even being reflected in the betting mart in Wall-st one commission house announced today the post of $5,500 to $1,000 that the Indiana senator, who looks like Grover Cleveland, will be the nominee. Three and a half to one is fairly short odds at this stage of the game with the track so crowded.

No disloyalty to Gov. Al Smith, Tammany's favorite son, is contemplated by Tammany chieftains in thus according him second place on the ticket. They are whooping things up for "Al" in a manner such as has seldom been in national conventions.

Proceeding on the theory that a half a loaf is better than no loaf at all, it is believed that when the delegates are weary and hot and tired and the strains of "Rosie O'Grady" get a bit sour, the can be persuaded to see the governor nominated for the vice presidency. This post, incidentally, is more popular than it once was and Senator Ralston will be 67 years old next June.

The way the Tammany people figure is this:

McAdoo and Smith are going to lead on the first ballot, with Sena-

No report has been received from Mrs. Cone's class, but it has a chance to finish first in Class A, and second in the county contest. The Warsaw Young Men's class has a chance for second position in Class A, and Dr. St. Clair's class a chance for third, altho final reports are likely to change the present standing, Glenn declared.

The results will be announced by Glenn as soon as he receives complete reports.

FARMERS ASK FOR TECHNICAL ADVICE

Responding to a daily average of 10 requests from Ohio county extension agents and farmers for technical information, the agricultural engineering department at the Ohio State University has prepared a series of mimeographed circulars under the title, "The Agricultural Engineering Information Series."

Eight are now available, two more are being prepared, and others will follow. Copies may be obtained free by applying to the agricultural engineering department of the State College at Columbus.

"Turn on the Water," the first circular in the series, treats of simple water systems. It incidentally gives a short way of determining the distance walked in a year when the farm home has no direct water supply system. What the hydraulic ram is, how it works, what it requires, and the amount of water it will pump are the points considered in leaflet number 2.

In detail the requirements for a poultry house are given in leaflet 3, and those of a centralized hog house in leaflet 4. Estimating building costs and figuring a bill of materials are explained and illustrated in the fifth leaflet in the series.

"Useful Information for Barn Design" is the title of the sixth number. Leaflet 7 gives practical data on lightning rods. Leaflet 8, on "Piping Water," considers both theory and practice.

EGGS RETURN MOST IN APRIL AND MAY

This Applies to the Average Ohio Poultryman, University Specialist Avers

Contrary to popular belief, spring months usually are the most profitable months of the year for poultrymen. Tho the price of eggs is low, the volume of production is large enough to insure a small margin of profit on every dozen.

In introducing this statement that April and May are the best months in the year for poultrymen R. E. Cray, poultry extension specialist at the Ohio State University says:

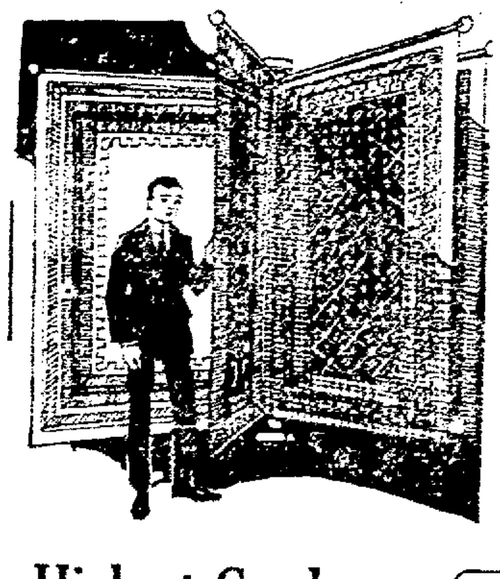

"Higher egg production is obtained, eggs hatch better, and the chicks grow faster and better. This, no doubt, is due to ideal weather, a longer day, plenty of green feed and insects, and opportunity to exercise. Also, broilers are beginning to go on the market and the added income from them helps pay for the expenses of brooding.

"Low prices for eggs during these months are a severe handicap poultrymen think. But the poultrymen who does not keep records on his flocks does not realize that it takes virtually as much feed to maintain 100 birds one month as another; that as a result, during the months of high egg prices, production is low and the cost of producing a dozen eggs is more.

"Actual cost account records show that the ordinary farmer makes more when egg prices are low because he gets a high production and makes a narrow margin of profit on a large number of eggs. When egg prices are high he makes a wide margin on a very few eggs.

"It's the percent production that determines the cost per dozen. Two years ago record on Ohio farms getting good production showed an average cost of 8 to 10 cents a dozen thru the spring and summer months.

stored. Spontaneous combustion around old mattresses and blankets on the floor is believed to have caused the fire.

A teamster who was riding along on his wagon saw the flames in the front room of the house as he was passing by, it was said. He ran to the burning building and later notified Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Randles, who live on the farm the building was on. Mrs. Randles called the local fire department and the lower station truck responded to the call.

The flames had enveloped the entire building when the firemen arrived. They could do nothing toward extinguishing the blazes with only a small chemical tank on the truck to fight the fire.

The army cots mattresses and blankets belonging to the Y. W. C. A. were burned, and a piano, the property of Mrs. Clara Olney, of the local library which was loaned to the Y. W. members, was also ruined. All of this property was stored in the front room of the building.

This big brick structure of 20 rooms was originally built by Frank Wolf and was to have been constructed for a county infirmary. It was never used for that purpose. The building was sold about two years ago to Mrs. Sarah Wilson, who lives on Locust and Fourth-sts.

According to a local real estate man it would cost at least $15,000 to replace a building of this kind. The structure was insured for $1,500 thru the McConnell & Karr agency of this city.

The building had been abandoned recently. Part of the building was formerly used by the local Y. W. C. A. as their camp.

fore the interior department," he added.

"Are you acquainted with Senator Wheeler," asked Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho.

"Yes, I met him in the summer of 1923, after we had practically cleaned up all the matters referred to us by Mr. Campbell," said Feely.

"Did you ever have any dealings with Senator Wheeler in a legal way?"

"Absolutely none."

"Then, Senator Wheeler never helped you before the government departments?"

"No sir. I didn't even confer with him."

"What relations did your firm have with Senator Wheeler on these matters pending before the department?"

"Absolutely nothing," said Feely.

"Did you ever have any communications with Senator Wheeler?" asked Senator Sterling, Republican of North Dakota.

"None. I didn't meet him until the summer of 1923," said Feely, "when our business was practically finished."

Denies Truth of Wheeler's Charge

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., April 24.—"The statement, credited to U. S. Senator B. K. Wheeler, Montana, that huge cash deposits in the Midland National Bank were made by H. M. Daugherty, Jesse W. Smith, or any one else connected with them, is false in every particular," declared V. F. Stuckey vice president of the bank, here today.

"The fact that the investigation by the senate committee was not permitted was only for the reason that it was an injustice to all patrons of the bank whose business was considered confidential and because the committee had no legal authority to secure information concerning patrons of the bank.

"In any court where fair treatment would be given, this bank is more than willing to give complete information relative to these facts."

It was reported here today the federal bank examiners have just completed an inspection of the bank's records and compliment the officials on the bank's condition.

Steps in Plate Making Shown in Bank Display

The display in the lobby of the Coshocton National bank this week is made up of products of the Pope-Gosser Pottery Company of Coshocton, showing several complete dinner sets.

In the window of the bank are shown the various steps in the manufacture of a plate. Samples of English china clay, Florida china clay, and English ball clay are included. Other products shown, used in the process of manufacture, are ground flint sand, feldspar, and mixed clay ready to mould.

The display shows the clay moulded into a plate, the plate after being fired in a Bisque kiln, after being dipped in glaze, after being fired in a Glost kiln, the plate with unfired decoration and after being fired in the decorating kiln, or a finished product.

The Pope-Gosser company started in this city 21 years ago. Starting at that time with three kilns, they now have nine. They recently have increased their capacity 50 per cent.

The company has permanent offices in Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago and Baltimore. Goods manufactured by them are sent to Alaska, Honolulu, and a deal is now being closed whereby the local company will furnish the material for equipping the domestic science department of a school in Costa Rica.

The pay roll is over $30,000 a month. The output is between 50,000 and 60,000 dozen pieces of dinner ware, such as is used on the tables of the average American families, per month.

The above figures and facts were submitted by George Mitchell, president of the local concern.

Timely Tips and Suggestions on the Latest Diagrams and Hook-Ups—Simplified

REGENERATING RECEIVERS IN MAJORITY

Most Receivers Cause Interference With Others

By CARLETON E. BUTLER, Radio Engineer.

The majority of the receiving sets in operation at the present time are of the regenerative type. In this class are included the majority of the manufactured sets that have been sold up to the present time, and an overwhelming percentage of the receivers that have been constructed from hookups.

Of the latter class the Reinartz, Ultra Audion, Super Regenerative, etc., are particularly guilty of sending out interfering signals from the antenna. The Ultra Audion has been capitalized under so many names and is so simple to build that it is probably the most numerous of the class of reradiating receivers.

When any regenerative receiver is operated so that the detector tube oscillates it is pretty sure to be emitting a wave from the antenna. This radio wave will travel to the surrounding receiving aerial and be heard as a whistle. When you tune in on a station your neighbors and others listening in on the same station will hear a whistle.

I am sure that it would sound better if I describe it from another angle. Suppose you are using a Neutrodyne or Reflex receiver, you have a receiving set that is capable of listening in on many long-distance stations without interfering with neighboring receiving sets.

You tune in a long distance station and sit back to enjoy a good program. The man down in the next block with an Ultra Audion or Reinartz receiver disguised under the name of a Whizoplex starts limbering up his wrists for a night of record breaking receiving.

He tunes in on the same program that you are listening to. Immediately a howl, succeeded by a bubbly garbled or blurred collection of sounds comes from your receiver. If he is content to leave his controls in the same position for an instant you may be able to tune in the station again.

Piles

Can't Be Cured from the Outside

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

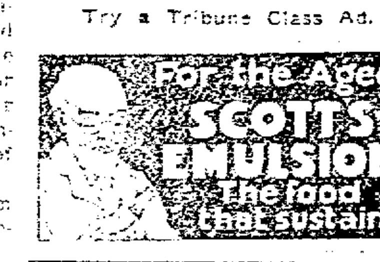

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Wimmer-Arnold Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

A dose at bedtime of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Made them feel jolly again

Good Health In Happy Old Age

THE chief concern of elderly people is their health, and that is best assured by regular daily bowel movement. There is no truth, however, in the notion that because you are old you need a "strong physic." In fact, just because you are old a mild laxative is better for you. The trouble with purges and cathartics and physics is that they shock the system and weaken it and make the muscles of digestion flabby. Dr. G. H. Brown, V. S., of Frederic, Wis., nearly wrecked his stomach with purgatives. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin restored his health, as it did Mrs. J. S. Etheridge's, of Milledgeville, Ga.

Does Not Gripe

You can be sure of satisfactory evacuations every day if you will take a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin at night when you retire. You will not need to take it very long as a few doses will soon encourage the bowels to act for themselves. The popularity of this wonderful family remedy has become so great that it is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Because of its mildness and freedom from griping it is especially ideal for the extremes of ages, for children and for elderly people.

Effective at Small Cost

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. The formula is on the package, and the cost less than a cent a dose. Take it when you feel heavy, sleep poorly, have headache or night cramps, for these are also symptoms of constipation. Give it to the children when they are restless, feverish or have a cold. Syrup Pepsin will keep you and the family free from constipation, a condition that lowers the vitality 25 per cent and raises the blood pressure 28 per cent. Freedom from constipation lessens the pain of kidney trouble, neuritis and rheumatism.

Call Phone 205

Covers were arranged for 200 persons, Thursday evening, at the annual Young Woman's Christian Association banquet held in the attractive new assembly room of the association, at 6 o'clock.

Unusually artistic decorations graced the long tables where the members in the various clubs and others interested in the work of the organization were seated.

Green and white was used at the Rouser's table. Holding center place was a huge bouquet of white snap dragons, placed on a cutout of green crepe paper. Green candles in crystal sticks were placed at intervals while miniature baskets in the green and white, filled with candies, were given as favors.

The Many-Ha-Ha table was lovely with decorations in pink and green Crystal baskets holding pink sweet peas were placed here and there about the table, entwined with narrow strips of green crepe paper, Crystal holders, bearing tulip-shaped covers in the pink held pink candles.

Suggestive of the Easter season's was the Laf-O-Lot table. Purple and yellow predominated here. Holding center place was an electrically lighted fountain, in play on a purple standard. Bouquets of jonquils, quantities of yello wand purple crepe paper yellow and purple baloons, and lighted Japanese lanterns were also used. A string of bright red baloons hung above the entire length of the Live Wires club and assisted in carrying out the decorative color scheme of red and white. Several crystal and silver candelebras holding lighted red tapers, were used at either end while a large French basket filled with red roses, occupied the central position at the table. Red crepe paper cutouts completed the desired effect.

Following the dinner, served by the Rebecca lodge Mrs. George Brunskill, president of the Y. W. C. A. the presiding officer and toastmaster spoke. Miss Rhoda Rohler, of the Laf-O-Lot club gave a well prepared talk on—"Truth and Courage—Their Place in the Federation," preceding Miss Zoe Campbell, of the Live Wires, who was splendid in her remarks on—"Friendliness."

Songs and yells from the different club members were heard thruout the dinner and were typical of the enthusiastic gatherings of the association. Immediately following the affair, a flashlight picture of the entire group was taken.

Guests filling two tables enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Harry Beach 814 Cambridge-st. Thursday, when she entertained her luncheon-bridge club, in her home.

Following luncheon cards were in play, with Miss Margaret Gallagher holding top score.

Those present were Mrs. E. H. Lynde, of Columbus, Mrs. James Beach, Mrs. Robert Q. Baker, Mrs. L. W. Leonard, Mrs. Louis Beach, Mrs. Joseph W. Shaw, Mrs. Robert Todd and Miss Margaret Gallagher.

Decidedly surprising to their many friends is the marriage of Miss Grace Hayes, of West Lafayette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hayes to Ernest Gunter of Cleveland, which was an event of April 19.

The ceremony was performed in Wheeling, W. Va.

After a short motoring trip, Mr. Gunter and his bride will go to Cleveland to make their home.

Mrs. Joseph Beall, of Columbus, will arrive Sunday afternoon to spend a couple of days with her sister, Mrs. W. B. 5 Operations—15 years suffering with constipation—Kellogg's Bran restores health

Mr. Lancing's case is typical of thousands of others. He found permanent relief from constipation in Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read what he says:

Dear Sir:

I have been afflicted with constipation for the past 15 years, and during that time I have been in four different hospitals and submitted to five different operations that were the result of constipation. I was getting so bad that every meal I ate soured on my stomach. Two months ago I was advised to eat your Kellogg's Krumbled Bran. I tried it, as I was trying everything I could hear of. From that day on I have never taken a physic. My stomach does not sour any more and my bowels move regularly morning and evening. Yours sincerely,

Frank Lancing,
1306 Jefries Ave., Marion, Ind.

For permanent relief, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the delicious nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran—so different from ordinary brans, which are unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is served by leading hotels and clubs in individual packages. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers

LAWRENCE'S LETTER

COPYRIGHT, 1924, BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Republican Sentiment Seems to Favor Hughes for Temporary Chairman of Convention

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, seems at the moment the most likely choice for temporary chairman of the Republican national convention at Cleveland.

This is the latest turn in the Republican political situation. Mr. Hughes speech at the New York state convention not only has earned him a place of leadership but the prestige he holds in the Republican party, having served twice as governor of the state of New York, as an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States and as the Republican nominee for the presidency in the close race of 1916, is calculated to influence his selection.

At first the Republican leaders that it would be a wise thing to cater to some of the western sentiment by choosing a man of agricultural affiliations but while there are many names acceptable, the decision will turn on the question of prestige inside the party. President Coolidge, of course will have more to say than anybody else about the choice of a temporary chairman. The president's speech in New York significantly pointed to the achievements of the secretary of state. Also, a week ago, Mr. Hughes made an enthusiastic address about the necessity of nominating and electing President Coolidge. There is a feeling that Mr. Hughes could make a keynote speech at the national convention at Cleveland which would arouse the delegates to enthusiasm. With the exception of Henry Cabot Lodge, senior senator from Massachusetts who is the leader of the senate, nobody ranks as high in the service of the party as Mr. Hughes. The fact that Mr. Coolidge comes from Massachusetts makes it politically unwise to name a man for temporary chairman from the same state. There is some talk about the possibility that Senator Lodge may make the speech placing Mr. Coolidge in nomination.

Meanwhile the discussion of Democratic politics continues to grow in interest. Most of the editors and publishers assembled at New York this week for instance were asking each other to guess the next Democratic presidential nominee. Naturally with the Republican race closed to President Coolidge there is an inevitable interest in the Democratic contest. One found many persons from different parts of the country ready to admit that Mr. McAdoo could not be nominated because of the one third block against him. The doubtedly the editors with whom this correspondent talked felt that the first fight would be on McAdoo, that he would either develop greater strength on the first few ballots or be eliminated quickly. There seems to be no idea that anyone else in the race will bear the brunt of the initial balloting.

Next to McAdoo, the talk is of Senator Ralston of Indiana. While many insist that he cannot be nominated because of his advanced age, there are others who think Gov. Al Smith's wet views will disqualify him. Yet the champions of both Ralston and Smith are cocksure there will be a stampede in the direction of their favorite. The name of John W. Davis is mentioned more frequently than any one else with the possible exception of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, as a possible compromise candidate, though many of the Democratic editors interview in New York felt sure Senator Underwood of Alabama would win if the party went south of the Mason and Dixon line for a candidate. Mr. Underwood is held in high esteem and if he hailed from a northern state, his nomination would be a foregone conclusion.

Sentiment in favor of any one man has not crystallized so far as the opinions of editors from many parts of the country would seem to indicate. But all seem to expect a long drawn out convention of the Democrats with plenty of balloting and excitement such as characterized the sessions in 1912 at Baltimore and in 1920 at San Francisco.

"JUST MARRIED"

Theatre-goers are anticipating with a remarkable show of interest the forthcoming production in this city of "Just Married" which ran for two solid years at the Comedy, Shubert and Nora Bayes theatres, New York. All box office records were broken during this engagement and the run might have continued another year were it not for the necessity of filling other contracts in Philadelphia and Boston, contracts that had been previously made. "Just Married" is declared by the critics to be the phenomenal comedy success of the century. The play is the work of Adelaide Matthews and Anna Nichols.

The story of the play centers about a gently stimulated young man who gets aboard the French Line steamship, "Lafayette," by mistake, just before sailing from Bordeaux, France, for New York. There are several other assorted couples abroad, old and young, married and unmarried—and some honeymooners, willing and unwilling. From the time the stimulated gentleman comes aboard, without any effort of will on his part, things are all so bewildered, entangled and messed up, that there is apparently no untangling their difficulties. There seems to be only two ways out, either the ship must put back to Bordeaux or the young man must be thrown overboard. Things come right eventually, however, and the voyage peacefully proceeds.

The company plays at the Sixth Street theatre Friday, May 2.

"THE COVERED WAGON"

Removed from the thots and environments of the ordinary workaday world, forgetting for the time being you are in a theatre seat, is the delightful sensation experienced by those who will witness the remarkable screen version of Emerson Hough's tale, "The Covered Wagon," to be seen at the Sixth St. Theatre matinee and night, Saturday, May 3.

This is much more than a motion picture, far greater in scope and appeal than any stage presentation. It is truly an epic of American life and one calculated to appeal to the finer emotions in that it has to do with a period of American history and development of which we are all justly proud. Not the wage of battle against exterior aggression nor the wreck of war for preservation of national integrity, but a heart, mind and body struggle to advance the greatness of the United States. In this struggle enthralling to behold we see both sexes, young and old all part of the indomitable American will to go to better things. This film presentation is accomplished in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the spirit it reflects and the striking characterizations are essayed by actors of ability who seem to share full well their responsibility to the national ideal. Among the noted players seen in various roles are Lois Wilson, J. Warren Kerrigan, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall and others.

A special orchestra of 20 musicians will play the accompanying score.

Personal Finances of the Presidents

COMPARATIVE WEALTH OF THE PRESIDENTS—1789—1923.

Equated in the term of the variable purchasing power of money from year to year, from the birth of Washington until now the richest President at birth was Roosevelt, with Washington second. Others well-to-do at birth were Jefferson, Madison, Hayes and Taft. The richest, upon coming to the Presidency was Washington, with Tyler second, Hayes, third, and Roosevelt fourth. The richest at death were Washington, Hayes, Roosevelt, Cleveland and Tyler.

The comparison of salaries received by Presidents is unfair. Until Grant, all Presidents paid for White House maintenance out of their salaries. No maintenance is at government cost. Before Grant, Presidents maintained the White House and saved what they could. Since Grant it has been possible to save most of the salary. If we should consider White House maintenance as part of the salary, the Presidents' income would approximate $75,000 a year now, or twelve times what Presidents were paid from 1789 to 1871 each year.

At birth the poorest of the future Presidents was Andrew Jackson, whose parents were destitute. He had also the hardest childhood and youth. The parents of Fillmore, of Lincoln and of Johnson were in deep poverty. Hard, though less hard, were the early years of Taylor, Garfield and Cleveland.

Upon coming to the Presidency, some men had little or no property, and some who had property had no cash. But all of them were easy in mind regarding money.

The poorest at death was Jefferson, who was badly in debt. Garfield also was in financial trouble because of his dreadful wound and expensive medical care. Monroe died homeless and penniless, too obstinate to live with his children. Arthur also was poor at death, though well cared for in a good home. Adams had a home of his own no more.

The Presidents who had the happiest childhood and youth were Madison and Taft; most of the others were reared under favorable circumstances—both Adamses, both Harrisons, Madison, Tyler, Polk, Pierce, Buchanan, Grant, Arthur, McKinley, Roosevelt and Wilson. Thirteen suffered from poverty or griefs.

Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt are commonly accounted "great men." Some persons add Madison, Jackson, Grant, Cleveland and Wilson. This shows that their finances did not control fame. From the estates of Washington, land and money; Hayes, securities, Polk, land and securities; Grant, a book of Memories; Taylor, land and slaves; Roosevelt, securities and many books, their heirs realized the most though not in all cases immediately. All these might be styled "millionaire estates." Not much less fortunate were the heirs of Madison, Buchanan, Cleveland and Harding.

Tomorrow's installment will discuss the finances of George Washington.

Where Quality Counts

Early Pasturing Damages Herbage

One of the practices prevailing in a measure among Coshocton-co farmers, that is subject to much criticism on the part of agricultural authorities is that of early pasturing. An occasional farmer turns out his stock as early as the middle of April.

Referring to the practice of early pasturing County Agent G. C. Musgrove says:

Pasture yields twice as much if turned on later in the season. Nature's first attempt is to restore the injury of the winter. This is done by using the reserved food of the pasture plants to put out leaves. The leaves then by the use of the sunshine takes the raw material from the ground and combines it with the gas of the air to make the food which nurtures the growing plant.

If these leaves or blades are [illegible] the pasture will be greatly [illegible] while if they are left until later in the season—May 15, or later—the plants will have gained sufficient strength to produce twice as much pasture during the season.

[illegible] pasture contains so much water that it scours cattle and is of little actual value as feed. If cattle were kept in and fed, especially where ensilage is available, it would be better and the [illegible].

If the pasturing is commenced later, giving the grasses a chance to grow, and the fields are not pastured too close during the season, the weeds that infest most pastures will be driven out.

Nine Graduated in White Eyes Tp. Last Night

A capacity house, close to 500 persons, heard the annual White Eyes tp high school commencement exercises held at Lahm's opera house, in Fresno, Thursday evening.

The Rev. Joseph Speer delivered the class address to the nine graduates, Dora Braun, Cecil Hamilton, Walter Boyd, Minnie Burrier, Walter Amacher, Verle Olinger, Elmer Lehman, Elizabeth Keane and Gladys Thomas.

Urging a more comprehensive education for the youth of the future Rev. Speer emphasized the power of ideals in the lives of present day American citizens. The designating money as the true measure of man's ability, the speaker deplored a more cultivation of character, that commendable means might not be used in its accumulation and use.

Elizabeth Keane gave the class history, Walter Amacher, the poem, Elmer Lehman, the class diagnosis, Walter Boyd, the class vision, Gladys Thomas, the class will, and Dora Braun, the class grumbler. Minnie Burrier delivered an oration on "Our National Parks," Verle Olinger, one on "Ohio's Presidents," and Cecil Hamilton spoke on "Gems of Literature."

County Superintendent of Schools H. B. Pigman presented the diplomas to the members of the graduating class.

The Coshocton K of P. orchestra under the direction of Ortello Frederick was highly appreciated in a number of splendid selections.

The "Royal Repentance" Dicky Rendered Over the Telephone

LILLIAN rose from her chair as she finished her crisp account of her dramatic boat journey through the waters of Flushing Bay and the successful escape of the Braithwaites and the Harrison children to the ship bound for South America.

There had been no word of her own activities during the day and evening, and yet I knew that the chartering of the boat and the direction of the flight all had emanated from her fertile and resourceful brain. But I also knew that I never would know more than she had chosen to tell ... unless when the way was clear ... the return of the Braithwaites to their native land, I should hear of it from their lips. I ventured but a casual question:

"What did you do with Alf?"

"Oh, he just had time to catch a late train home. He's playing the dutiful spouse just now, isn't he?"

"It's about time," I grumbled, and Lillian laughed lightly.

"Alf never did strike me as a lad upon whose shoulders the matrimonial yoke would fit any too snugly," she commented. "You don't mind if I go to bed, do you? I'm too tired to breathe."

"Of course not. Just leave room for me. I shall follow you very quickly."

"What time do you plan to go to the farm?"

"Tomorrow on the first train, or rather I shall go to Marvin and see Mrs. Durkee, and take a later train out home. I haven't seen Her Fluffiness since she came home from the hospital."

"Nor I," Lillian rejoined. "I must try to run out, myself, between trains soon. Be sure to awaken me in plenty of time in the morning. I want to make you out a list of the things I need packed and parcel-posted back to me here, and I'm too tired to do it tonight."

"You don't mean to be back to the farm before you settle down here?" I asked banally, too surprised to remember Lillian's dislike of being questioned.

An Expected Telephone Call.

"Not with all the dynamite and nitro, not to mention T. N. T., piled up back there," she answered dryly with an expressive jerk of her head toward the rear rooms. I realized that the incident of the concealed furs, while she had made light of it to me, yet held something especially significant to her, something which she meant to watch, not only on my account but for reasons of her own. "No, I'm going to stay right here, with no Thursdays or Sundays out until I've proved something to myself. And don't worry about me. I'm perfectly capable of hoisting Mrs. Marks and her little Petey up to the yardarm with one hand if they get humorous."

She disappeared into the other room, drawing the sliding doors together after her.

I was fatigued enough to follow her to bed without further delay, but I had a prescient little feeling that when Dicky realized that he had slammed down the receiver upon a tentative apology from me, he would ring me up again, and while I was in no particularly forgiving mood, yet I neither wished to leave the ring unanswered, nor to climb shivering out of a warm bed to answer it.

I put another small log on the fire, and wheeled the davenport couch over near it, arranging it so that the reading lamp stood at its head. Then, slipping off my shoes, I drew up a blanket over me and settled down among the couch pillows with a magazine, to wait until Dicky should telephone or I should decide that it was too late for him to ring the apartment.

"You're Not Very Fierce."

I did not have long to wait, barely fifteen minutes, until I heard the expected ring. I pattered to the telephone and spoke softly into it.

"Yes? Mrs. Graham speaking."

"Hello, Madge!" Dicky's voice held the boyishly embarrassed note which is always his when he is repentant. "I was an awful swine tonight—two or three of 'em. Awfully sorry and all that, old girl. You're not very fierce, are you?"

I answered the meaning not the words of his jargon.

"Not very," I returned with a light little laugh. "Are you coming back here tonight?"

"I can't very well, now," he returned doubtfully. "I've taken a room at a hotel, and I'm telephoning from it."

His tone told me that a little encouragement from me would bring him, but I was in no mood for a reconciliation scene.

"No, of course not," I acquiesced promptly. "When are you going to the farm?"

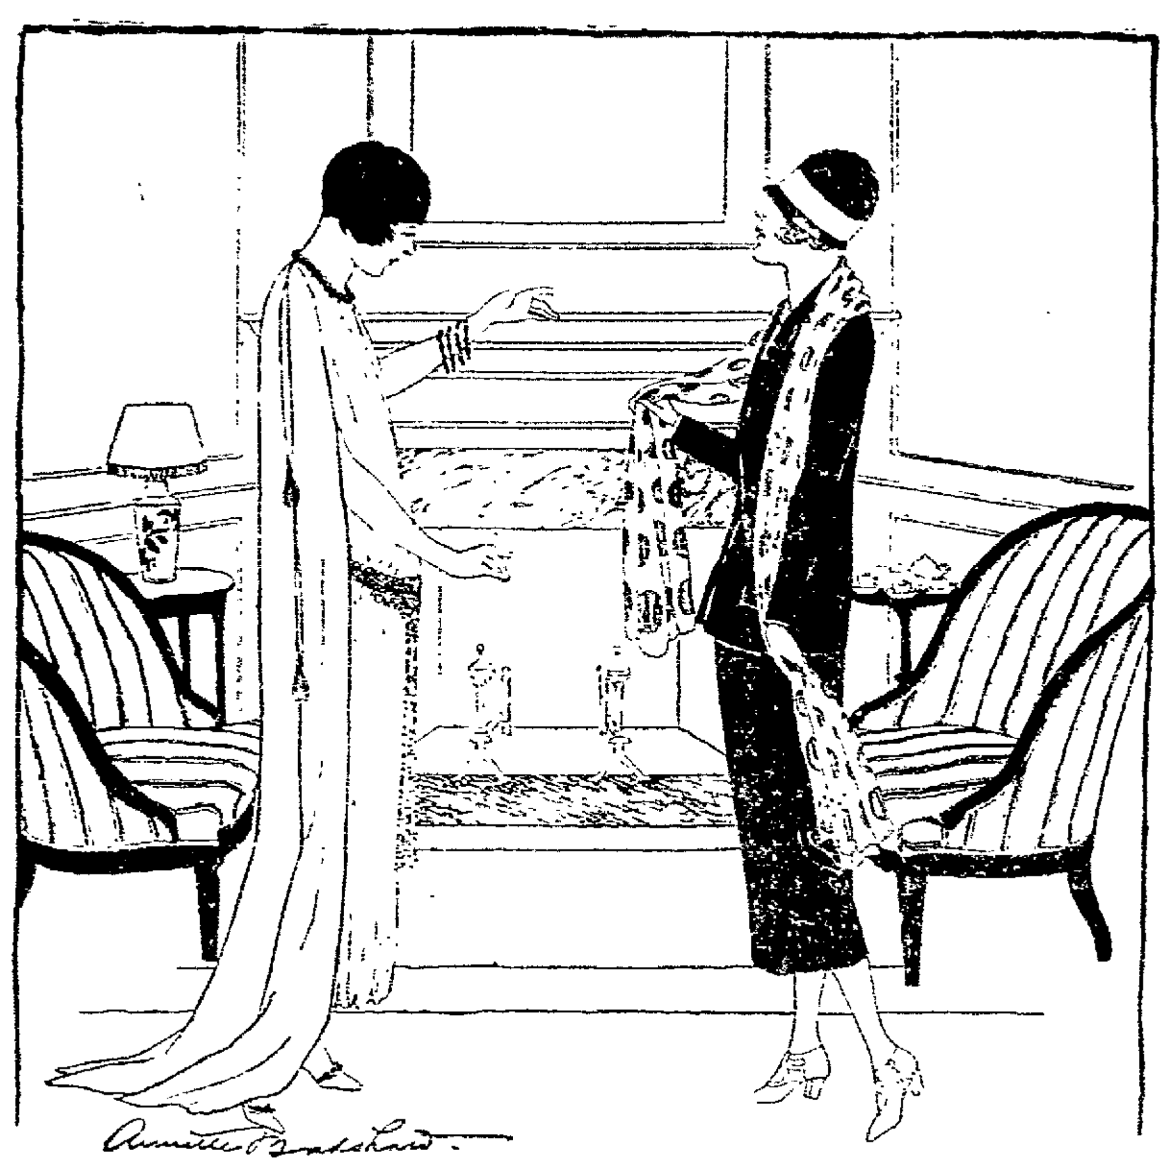

"When are you?" he countered.

"Tomorrow morning, with a stopover at the Durkees'. I'll be home on that last train."

"I'll go out on the first train and meet you at Bridgehampton station," he said. "Good night."

Did I fancy it, or had I heard the sound of a kiss in the telephone before he hung up the receiver?

YOUR HEALTH

Beware a Toothache and Danger's of Abscess

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

DO you ever count your blessings?

In thinking them over are you able to say, "I have never had a tootache"?

If you can truthfully do so, you are indeed a fortunate mortal.

There are few pains harder to bear than the cutting, throbbing ache of a decayed tooth. The worst thing about this form of suffering is that it is usually unnecessary. At the same time, it is terribly prevalent. It has been estimated that forty per cent of the absences of children from school on account of illness are due to aching teeth. In nearly all of the cases the trouble might be prevented by regular and timely care.

Nature built our teeth to do their work easily and well and to resist disease. She covered each tooth with a very hard and compact substance, the enamel. So long as the enamel is intact, the teeth are capable of masticating without discomfort or effort any substance included in the normal food of man. Likewise, they will withstand the extremes of heat or cold without damage.

Like every other material in nature, the enamel may be damaged. There are certain substances which have the power to injure or destroy this protecting enamel. Chief among these substances are the acids formed by the fermentation of food.

The mouth is constantly filled with germs that come to it from the fingers, from the air, from everything reaching it. Some of these germs have the power of converting certain foods into lactic acid.

This is particularly true of sugar and starches. When foods containing large amounts of these substances—such as fresh bread, pie crust, cake, chocolates and other sweets—are eaten and the teeth are not cleansed afterward, the acid forming germs go immediately to work on the material which is left lodged on the teeth.

It is only a question of time before your neglect is paid for. Ulceration or abscess of the tooth results. This may be followed by any of the far-reaching ills which are due to pus formation anywhere in the body.

There may be a swelling at the root of the tooth and in the face. As in the case of any other abscesses, when this condition is found at the root of a tooth, the pus must be drained. For this work, the dentist must be consulted.

For the immediate relief of the pain, until the dentist can be reached, hot water may be held in the mouth, or rolls of gauze dipped in hot water may be held against the mouth. Never apply hot fomentations to the outside of the face for the toothache. This may soften the tissues and draw the pus to the skin surface, with the result of an ugly scar in the cheek.

"Counter irritation" may be used. That is, a mildly irritating drug may be applied to draw the blood to the surface.

Do not be content with the relief of the pain. So long as you have a diseased tooth you are in danger of pus absorption with all the evils that follow such self-poisoning.

Answers to Health Questions

H. L. K. Q.—I have been advised to take sulphur as a blood purifier. Do you believe that this is harmful in any way?

2.—What would cause a girl to groan in her sleep when she feels perfectly all right?

A.—No, sulphur is not harmful to take as a blood purifier.

2.—This may be due to constipation, nervousness or intestinal disorder. Have an examination by your physician to determine the cause.

W. C. T. Q.—I had an operation for appendicitis about a year ago and five months later had another operation for adhesions. What causes this condition?

A.—Adhesions are bands of tissue, the result of inflammation, sometimes caused by an operation. When two inflamed or raw surfaces are left in contact there is likely to be union and the formation of adhesions.

MRS. H. W. S. Q.—Last Winter my husband had blood poisoning in his right limb and now it aches all the time. What would you advise?

A.—I would advise you to consult a physician who will find the cause of the pain. It may be due to a foci of infection somewhere. Bad teeth, tonsils and intestinal trouble frequently cause symptoms such as you describe.

MISS C. M. Q.—How can I increase the growth of my eyelashes?

A.—Apply one per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the eyelashes every night. This will help to increase their growth.

Good Night Stories

DORIS MEETS MRS. PAINTED BEAUTY.

"WILL you look here!" exclaimed Doris to Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Make-believe Land, one day while they were rambling through the woods. "Who could have put this funny-looking little thing among the hairs on this plant?"

Doris pulled out a queer little thing, barrel-shaped, yellowish-green in color, with vertical ribs on its surface. "Who in the world poked that funny-looking thing in here, anyway?" she asked.

"I did, of course," replied a silvery voice, and the most beautiful butterfly Doris had ever seen lighted on the straw-like flower.

"Why, if it isn't Mrs. Painted Beauty, herself," laughed Happy Giggles, and he at once introduced Doris, who couldn't take her eyes from the lovely creature.

She was certainly beautiful and she turned around and around so that Doris could see her in every light.

The general tone of the upper surface of her wings was a bluish-black with some distinct white markings on the front pair. Along the edge of her back wings ran a row of four dots. The under surface of her wings—she closed her wings so Doris could see them—was even more beautiful. They were spotted and striped with blotches and circles of gray and brown. On each front wing, near the outer edge, were three eye-spots in a row and on the hind wing were two bulls-eye circles.

"What is this queer little barrel?" Doris asked, touching the thing with a blade of grass. "Surely not one of your eggs?"

"You guessed right that time," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty. "I find it's the safest place on earth for my eggs, right here in among the hairs of the everlasting plant. It should be time for this egg to hatch as it only needs a few days."

"If It Isn't Mrs. Painted Beauty!"

Just at that instant the queer little greenish-yellow barrel-shaped egg opened and out crawled the tiniest caterpillar Doris had ever seen. He was terribly hungry and began at once to devour the hairs along the stem of the plant.

When it reached a leaf it ate all the hairs from underneath, then, with silken threads, made a wee little matted nest.

"A clever child," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty, proudly. "Now he'll stay there until he's stronger, then he will bend those two leaves together and weave silken threads around them to form a sheltered house. In the meantime he'll moult.

"He stays in the leaf until he is full-grown. There he hangs himself by the hind legs, head down. After a few hours the skin along his body will crack, and instead of a caterpillar hanging there you will see just a wee little hard cradle, called a 'chrysalis.' Then in about a fortnight, a butterfly will crawl out."

"Isn't that wonderful!" Doris exclaimed, eagerly, watching the wee little fellow snuggle down under the hairs of the plant, eating his dinner. "One seeing butterflies never stops to think how they come into the world."

"I'm quite sure if they knew the work it requires to grow into a big butterfly they wouldn't be so ready to destroy us," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty. "And I guess the bad the caterpillars do when young is offset by the beauty they add to the world when they have changed into butterflies."

Without another word Mrs. Painted Beauty spread her wings and sailed away.

"Well, we'll not harm him," laughed Doris, and she and Happy Giggles went on through the woods in search of new adventure.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

How the Pacific Ocean Was Discovered.

ONE of the big dramatic moments in the history of the world occurred on the 25th of September, 1513. On this day Vasco Nunez de Balboa and his band of daring Spaniards, after toiling for a month up the steep slopes of the Isthmian range, reached the summit of that peak in Darien. From there they first saw, spreading out endlessly, the mighty Pacific Ocean, the open road to China and India for which explorers had been vainly searching long before Columbus set out from Spain in 1492.

It was the great moment of Balboa's life, a life soon to be ignominiously extinguished.

Balboa seems to have been one of the kindliest, most courteous and bravest of the Spanish explorers. He was born in Spain about 1475, and made the voyage to the New World in 1501.

There were good-sized towns in a dozen places on the Caribbean by 1500, eight years after the discovery of America. Balboa settled in Hispaniola, which was Columbus's name for Haiti. He tried to be a planter, but he had no success with crops and soon got heavily in debt.

In order to escape his creditors, Balboa concealed himself in one of the big casks of victuals being sent aboard the ships of an expedition under Enciso which sailed from Hispaniola in 1510 for San Sebastian.

The stowaway revealed himself when the ships were at sea, and being known as a good fighting man Enciso ... d him as a comrade-in-arms ... found the settlement ... San Sebastian in ruins and no trace of its inhabitants.

Balboa then suggested that they go to Darien, which he had touched on his original voyage from Spain, and make a settlement there. His proposal was accepted and a town called Saint Mary's of Darien was founded. In a year or so Balboa rose to supreme power in this little colony. He was just and fair and the Indians liked him.

One of the Indians told Balboa of the great ocean beyond the mountains, and of the country of gold beyond. Balboa, of course, supposed the Indies were meant, but Peru was actually the land in the mind of the Indian.

Hearing that a ship from Spain was coming with an order for his arrest, Balboa decided to do something sensational and thus secure favor with the King of Spain. Accordingly he organized an expedition to go in search of the new ocean and the land of gold.

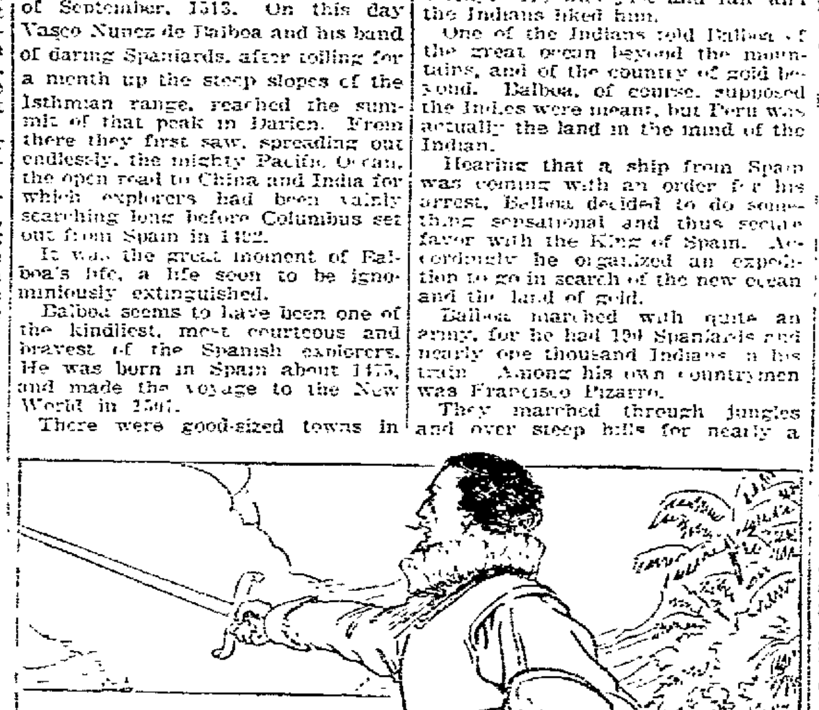

Balboa marched with quite an army, for he had 190 Spaniards and nearly one thousand Indians in his train. Among his own countrymen was Francisco Pizarro.

They marched through jungles and over steep hills for nearly a month before coming in sight of the great sheet of water. The ocean was utterly calm and peaceful when Balboa first saw it and he named it "Pacific" for that reason.

When they had descended to the seashore, Balboa waded out into the water and took possession of it in the name of the King of Spain.

Balboa remained nearly a month on the coast, collected booty of all sorts from the native settlements, and finally returned to Darien. He sent messengers to the King with gifts and was rewarded by the monarch with the title "Admiral of the Pacific."

Nevertheless, an expedition was sent from Spain under Pedrarias to take over the governorship of Darien. Pedrarias got possession of Balboa by treachery and had him executed on a charge of treason in the public square at Acla in Darien, in 1517. This was Balboa's reward for discovering the Pacific Ocean.

Balboa Took Possession in the Name of the King of Spain.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

Various Ways of Amusing Little Invalids.

EXPERT care of little invalids requires careful thought. It is of vital importance to keep them happy for this aids them in making a quick recovery. Cheerful, quiet, bright and cheery surroundings should be insured. No loud talking, arguments or irritating conversations should be permitted in or near the sick-room. No annoying clock-ticking, door or telephone bells, piano playing, or noisy machines should be tolerated unless by special request.

Squeaking doors and windows may be silenced by oiling hinges and soaping sills and ... Plenty of linen to keep the bed immaculate and all ordinary conveniences should be at hand. ... warmers, little cotton flannel blanket bags for hot water bottles and attractive little covers for the medicine glasses are all desirable.

The little trays with folding legs are most convenient, not only for serving food, but for the child to play on after being propped up comfortably in a cozy bedgown. The child should be permitted to sit up and play, but not long enough to get tired.

Now as to amusements. There are all manner of so-called "soft toys" to be had, such as rag dolls, cotton flannel animals, cotton-stuffed ... small bean bags with few beans in them, and a number of card games. If the child is able she may cut out pictures from card sheets and mount them, or paper dolls that may be dressed and set up against the rail of the bed. Then there are jigsaw puzzles, which are an endless joy to spread on the tray and fit together.

If the child likes to crochet, get cotton and let her make washcloths. That is light, easy work and work that may be sterilized when done. And cotton is easier to work with in bed than worsted. A small ... of ... blocks are good for a boy, who may build many different things ... of them. Visitors from outside should not be allowed until the child is well on the way to recovery ... excitement often undoes the good resulting from days of careful nursing.

Almost all children adore having stories read or told, and this is expected of those who do the nursing. Many children like being sung to in a pleasing, harmonious manner. In choosing books to read, select stories that deal with peaceful life, not those that are exciting and tiring to listen to.

Some little girls like old-fashioned spool work, which is easy to do and does not require much effort. They also like to see the cradle-like rings grow. Though this stuff used to be made into lamp mats, for which there is not much call today, it ... very attractive reins for wee ones and small bells may be sewed onto the reins piece.

Modeling clay is fun for children who like to work in it, and whiles away many a dragging hour. Transparent slates for children who like to draw are a good idea, especially the small sizes, which are not hard to hold.

Guessing games are fun if the child gets tired sitting up and must lie down and rest for awhile. Food stories are always of interest to children. They may be told about the things on the feeding tray and sometimes they stir the laggard appetite. The less talk there is about symptoms and the various points of the case, the better. Great care should be taken not to frighten a child in any way. Avoid long shadows from night-lights and be patient with night fears which are apt to pursue the sick child. Many things can be coaxed away. And habits formed during illness fade away as soon as the child is well.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a young man two years my senior. I love him very dearly. On Saturday night he asked if he might take me to the movies and I consented, but my parents objected to my keeping company with any one. I feel that I could not love any one else. My parents did not find out about my going with him. He has a fine character and people say he is a nice young man. He asked if I would not have a talk with my parents. How can I get my parents to allow him to call on me at the house? I would rather bring him to the house than stand on the street corner because I think it more ladylike, but my parents disapprove.

2.—Do you think it is wrong for a young man to kiss you?

3.—Do you think it is right for a young man to take a girl to the movies without her parents' knowing it?

ANXIOUSLY WAITING.

ANXIOUSLY WAITING:

1.—Evidently your parents disapprove of your having company because you are too young. However, why not talk to them and tell them of the young man and then be guided by their wishes? You may rest assured that whatever they say is for your good and you should be guided by their advice.

2.—It is improper to allow a young man to kiss you unless you are engaged to him.

3.—Most decidedly it is not right for you to go anywhere without your parents' knowledge and consent.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

What are you going to do when you love a young man and he says he loves you, but whenever you see him on the porch or anywhere he goes into the house. Is this bashfulness or just love?

PUZZLED KID.

PUZZLED KID: Possibly it is simply bashfulness on the part of the young man.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

She Discusses a Youthful Dance Frock.

"I'VE come to you for expert advice on the question of dressing my young daughter," a fond mother said to Madame when she entered the shop today.

"Delighted," Madame answered in a pleased tone.

"You see, she's at the difficult age," the mother explained.

"Your daughter couldn't be difficult if she's half as nice to plan clothes with as you are," Madame said in a flattering tone.

"Well, she isn't grown up enough to go to clothes of the debutante type, ... she isn't a little girl any more," the mother explained.

"How old is she?" Madame asked.

"Just sixteen," answered the ...

"Oh, I'm full of ideas for adorable clothes for the very young girl," Madame told her.

"What I want for Mabel just now is a dance frock," the mother explained. "She's going to her first formal evening dance next week."

"I should be delighted to let you see several very youthful models we have," Madame told her.

"What type is your daughter?" ...

"She's a brunette with creamy skin," the fond mother answered. "She's slim, and fairly tall."

"Then I should like to show you an orange ... that just came down ... Madame ... d ... would be lovely on a ... and the ... fled treatment is just the thing for a ... she ..." she added.

I was sent to don the frock.

The dress itself was simple, a long ... slip of ... and from the waist ... was a smart ruffled treatment that extended to the hem of the frock. Two big flowers of brilliant orange velvet added their color touches.

"I want to bring Mabel in this ... to try this one on," her mother said immediately.

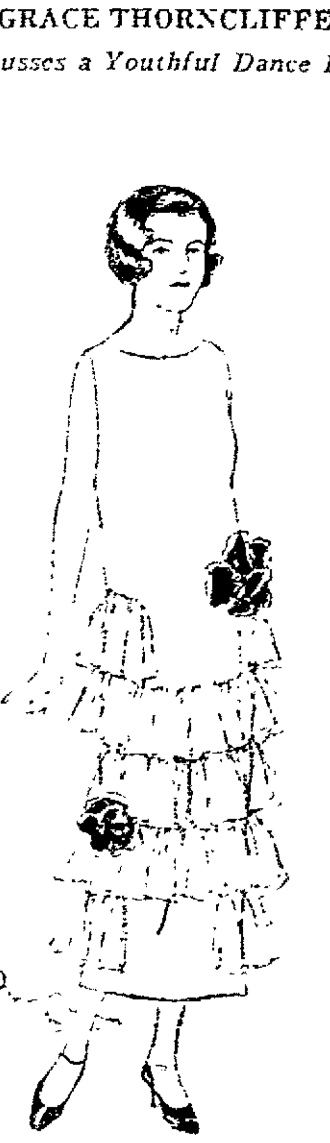

"I think she'll love it," Madame ... ed her. "You see the slip beneath is very supple silver tissue with threads of orange woven into it. The shimmering surface adds a note of youthfulness that I like for the young girl."

"She will undoubtedly like it," Mabel's mother said in a pleased tone.

"I should have come here sooner," she added. "I've looked several places and I could find nothing half so lovely."

"Choosing clothes for the girl who is not yet a debutante requires time and taste," Madame said.

"I like to cooperate with mothers who have such problems on their hands," she continued. "Often the young girl has very decided ideas of her own, and if they aren't just the best thing for her I can usually show her something so pretty that she's glad to take my advice on the subject."

A Code Of Business Ethics

A COMMITTEE of the United States Chamber of Commerce has drafted a code of business ethics, based on "the material needs of mankind," which will be submitted to the convention of the chamber at Cleveland next month.

The convention's action may not be predicted, but if adopted it is altogether improbable that such an ideal polity will suddenly become effective. For the code is, indeed, a counsel of perfection. Nevertheless, there are two items in the draft which ought to command the grave approval of business.

The recommendation that "corporate forms do not absolve from or alter the moral obligations of individuals" must become an actual practice if the corporation is to survive. That individuals have hidden behind the impersonality of this legal creature, have found in this impersonality license or justification for acts which as individuals they would have hesitated to perform is a commonplace that hardly needs to be stated. It is in protest of just such pleading and practice that we now have the aphorism that "guilt is personal."

The last item in the code should especially challenge not only the conscience but the acumen of the business man. It reads: "Business should render restrictive legislation unnecessary thru so conducting itself as to deserve and inspire public confidence."

Sincere compliance with this admonition would do more to allay unrest and calm the turbulence of the times than all the coercive or remedial laws that could be written. The approximation of this ideal is probably the one chance of permanency that remains to the present economic structure.

Thaw

A Philadelphia jury has declared Harry Thaw sane. The facts brot out in the hearing—not the experts' interpretation of them—indicated that he is as insane now as he was when he murdered Stanford White. Or the other alternative may be taken—that is that the man was as sane on the day of the murder as the jury yesterday found him to be, in which case he should have been convicted and executed. This on-and-off theory of insanity ought by this time to be pretty thoroly frayed, as should the justice-cheating "brain storm" defense. The whole defense of Thaw in his trial for murder was based on the theory that he acted on a purely rational motive—indeed that is the claim he made, or that was made for him. Yet the jury accepted the "brain storm" defense.

If he is released he will, it is said, have to answer to a criminal charge in New York. It will be interesting to see whether, if tried, the "brain storm" defense can again be made to serve. There is, of course, no telling when such a disturbance may seize him, nor was there any evidence offered which even tended to show that Thaw is not as much subject to "brain storms" as ever. It is a pity that the public should be compelled to give so much attention to so worthless a person, but as there are important principles involved there is no escape from the disagreeable necessity.

One of those principles has to do with the question of legal insanity. From the extreme medical point of view there are few men in the world who are not insane, and it is this view that has tended to prevail. But also there are few men who do not know what they are doing when they are doing it, do not realize and intend the consequences of their own acts. From the legal point of view such men ought to be held sane.

Perhaps the courts will from now on show less respect for the "brain storm" defense, and it may even be that juries will no longer be influenced by it. It is somewhat surprising that Thaw should have been so long restrained. The rule has been that those who escape conviction on the plea of insanity are immediately freed.

Senatorial Irresponsibility

IT is taking the President, the State Department, the press, the churches and the peace organizations to turn back the tide of international wrath and agitation precipitated by the action of the United States Senate following the ill-considered misinterpretation of a phrase by Senator Johnson of California and Senator Lodge, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Since the Senate voted on the exclusion issue Ambassador Hanihara has explained in a formal statement to Secretary Hughes that no "veiled threat" was contained in his expression of "grave consequences" as included in his first communication on the subject. Secretary Hughes in reply not only accepts the explanation but declares he "had no doubt" of the friendly and proper meaning of the phrase as intended by the Ambassador. This is virtually to say that he never had any doubt.

What a simple thing it would have been for the Senate leaders, after consulting with the State Department, to have accepted Hanihara's words as Hughes accepted them instead of bringing on an open discussion and a vote which has stirred Japan to a fever of injured national pride, which has revived talk of war, invoked a boycott against California products, embarrassed and endangered the lives of Americans in Japan and, as Senator Reed of Pennsylvania said, has undone the accomplishments of 20 years of diplomacy.

It has been popular in the past to damn the American press as the most dangerous aid to jingoism and a menace to international peace. In the present crisis Japanese Foreign Minister Matsui comments: "One feature of the situation which is most comforting to Japan is the sympathetic attitude of a majority of the American newspapers. The Japanese people may still place hope in the greatness of American character."

The Senate, thru its ratifying power, has a responsibility in foreign affairs second only to that of the President. The present condition is a fair demonstration of its irresponsibility and local-mindedness. Senator Johnson's jingoism is a plain case of anti-Japanese constituency. Senator Lodge's principal fame rests on his readiness to exploit international relations for political ends.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 25. — Thoughts while strolling around New York: Two more Mah Jong shops. Tony Drexel, the avenue fashion plate. Jaunty tennis players. Hotel portico flirts with the ser grip of vanity — like a dog scratching a flea.

Yong Oscar Hammerstein, II. And there's Lionel Barrymore. The mad luncheon hour. You can see wine coolers under tables from the sidewalk. The smart horse and carriage. Giggley flappers with hard faced men who smile only with their lips.

Pompous men who look like bankers but may be bootleggers. Aeolian Hall advertises a "mountain symphony." The old cabbie who is the image of Lloyd George. Save for his red nose. A veiled woman leaves a swami's parlor.

The matinee crowds. Always bright eyed and chatty. Valentino and his German police dog. Wonder what happened to that word "scofflaw?" And to the old fashioned dinner pail? A second hand store has a pile of spats in the window.

Something strange for New York a brightly painted street car. Most of them are ready for the scrap pile. A fellow greets a girl with "Hello, good looking!" Bet he goes to vaudeville. Vivacious shop girls, like new sprung fountains, gushing up to meet life at the brim. Jazz jagged Janes.

The ambulance comes for a man who has fainted in a cigar store telephone booth. A great criminal lawyer who walks along pulling the heavy forelock of his iron gray hair. Rushing tourists who wonder how New York ever stands the pace.

A tea room window sign reads: "Canaries sing while you eat." The old woman in Times Square who wears a black sunbonnet and sings "Maggie." A manicure parlor for "Men Only." An imperious headwaiter who now owns a half block building. Bought with tips.

In Little Italy residents will fight when the epithet of "wop" is applied to them. Shoe shiners and small tradesmen who come from Italy accept the term with no shortened from Wapparousa, a Sicilian localism for a good-for-nothing fellow. Another term for the Italian is "guinea." It comes from the days when counterfeit coins were brought to England on the boats sailing from Italy. The men who issued the counterfeit gold coins, English guineas were called by the name of the coin and gradually the British extended the name to all Italians—but it is not resented as much as the term "wop."

New York is noted as the home of the "four flush." It reaches the highest peak here. It is expressed at times in handing the waiter a fifty dollar bill getting in the front row at the theatre at gouging prices or ringside tables in cafes. Yet there is something intensely human about the man who is given to the "four flush." As a rule he is a man who has made his money by hard work. His early life was in a background of poverty. Now that he has arrived he wants to make a show. He may have a twinge of regret over paying $7 for a necktie but he thinks nothing of paying $5 for a 25 cent bottle of table water.

There is even something human to me about the men who engineer dinners in their honor. This is done almost every week and there are two young men who make a comfortable living getting behind the self in-pired dinner for anyone who will put up a guarantee so in case they fail they will not be out any money for their time.

The heaviest sidewalk traffic in New York is in front of the Astor Hotel on Broadway at 11:20 at night when the theatres empty their hordes. The sidewalk and half the street is taken up for about a half hour. Shops there complain they do no business at this time because people cannot get into their shops.

For scientific purposes a motion picture camera capable of making 2500 pictures a second has been constructed.

WALT MASON

HIGH PRICES

The booze they sell is priced so high a poor man can't get drunk; a beaker of their deadly rye will cost you half a plunk. A man must be absurbly rich if he'd acquired a bun, and roll around in yonder ditch and have all kinds of fun. They used to make their booze of grain, of barley, corn and rye, and one could take his bitters plain, and not go blind or die. The barley and the rye and corn were inexpensive stuff and fifteen cents would buy a horn, and that seemed deer enough. But now they're using costly dyes, and drugs of noxious smell, to make the bourbons and the ryes the bootleg dealers sell. It costs to manufacture booze, the way they make it now, to gather up old overshoes, and horns of goat and cow, to boil tin cans and cast-off hats, the rinds of rancid cheese, to get the blood of vampire bats, the sap of upas trees. One cannot get without expense, an alligator's nest, the rusty bach wire from a fence, that gives the bitters zest. One cannot without money buy a vat of purple ink, a crosscut saw, a keg of lye, to make the modern drink. And so the price of flowing bowls is up, and up to stay, and only men with ample rolls can kill themselves that way. But one may to the hydrant trek, in peace and great content, and pour three gallons down his neck, and not cough up a cent.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

A POSTMASTER'S PAY

Editor The Tribune:

There are some things X. Y. Z. of your issue of the 19th forgot to mention, and for the benefit of the readers I will state how the lowly fourth class postmaster receives money for his labor and bother.

In the first place the so called salary is limited to $250.00 in any one quarter, second, after $75.00 in one quarter he recives 60c on the dollar up to the next hundred and after that, 40 per cent. Perhaps this has been changed since X. Y. Z. ran the P. O. for Mr. Blank.

Perhaps X. Y. Z. is trying to set the price on eggs in his corner. Perhaps he tried to get the post office once and was refused. Perhaps he ran an add when he ran the office "Postage Paid." Who knows?

I wonder if any of the readers know the regulations for our office hours? We are on duty as postmaster during the regular business hours of the town, and in my case that is from 6:30 A. M. to as late as 12:00 P. M. We get nothing but legal holidays and Sundays off. There are many, many trips to the office, money orders to write, reports to make out, money to send in, Treasury Savings Certificates to sell, and a thousand and one other things to do. My post office work will average not less than 3½ hours daily, and last year after all the bricks and saw dust I shipped I received the large sum of $528.30.

Yours truly,
FORREST S. WINTERMUTE,
Postmaster.

The "Royal Repentance" Dicky Rendered Over the Telephone

LILLIAN rose from her chair as she finished her crisp account of her dramatic boat journey through the waters of Flushing Bay and the successful escape of the Braithwaites and the Harrison children to the ship bound for South America.

There had been no word of her own activities during the day and evening, and yet I knew that the chartering of the boat and the direction of the flight all had emanated from her facile and resourceful brain. But I also knew that I never would know more than she had chosen to tell … unless when the way was clear … the return of the Braithwaites to their native land, I should hear of it from their lips. I ventured but a casual question:

"What did you do with Alf?"

"Oh, he just had time to catch a late train home. He's playing the dutiful spouse just now, isn't he?"

"It's about time," I grumbled, and Lillian laughed lightly.

"Alf never did strike me as a lad upon whose shoulders the matrimonial yoke would fit any too snugly," she commented. "You don't mind if I go to bed, do you? I'm too tired to breathe."

"Of course not. Just leave room for me. I shall follow you very quickly."

"What time do you plan to go to the farm?"

"Tomorrow on the first train, or rather I shall go to Marvin and see Mrs. Durkee, and take a later train out home. I haven't seen Her Fluffiness since she came home from the hospital."

"Nor I," Lillian rejoined. "I must try to run out, myself, between trains soon. Be sure to awaken me in plenty of time in the morning. I want to make you out a list of the things I need packed and parcel-posted back to me here, and I'm too tired to do it tonight."

"You don't mean to be back to the farm before you settle down here?" I asked banally, too surprised to remember Lillian's dislike of being questioned.

An Expected Telephone Call.

"Not with all the dynamite and nitro, not to mention T. N. T., piled up back there," she answered dryly with an expressive jerk of her head toward the rear rooms. I realized that the incident of the concealed furs, while she had made light of it to me, yet held something especially significant to her, something which she meant to watch, not only on my account but for reasons of her own. "No, I'm going to stay right here, with no Thursdays or Sundays out until I've proved something to myself. And don't worry about me. I'm perfectly capable of hoisting Mrs. Marks and her little Petey up to the yardarm with one hand if they get humorous."

She disappeared into the other room, drawing the sliding doors together after her.

I was fatigued enough to follow her to bed without further delay, but I had a prescient little feeling that when Dicky realized that he had slammed down the receiver upon a tentative apology from me, he would ring me up again, and while I was in no particularly forgiving mood, yet I neither wished to leave the ring unanswered, nor to climb shivering out of a warm bed to answer it.

I put another small log on the fire, and wheeled the davenport couch over near it, arranging it so that the reading lamp stood at its head. Then, slipping off my shoes, I drew a blanket over me and settled down among the couch pillows with a magazine, to wait until Dicky should telephone or I should decide that it was too late for him to ring the apartment.

"You're Not Very Fierce."

I did not have long to wait, barely fifteen minutes, until I heard the expected ring. I pattered to the telephone and spoke softly into it.

"Yes? Mrs. Graham speaking."

"Hello, Madge!" Dicky's voice held the boyishly embarrassed note which is always his when he is repentant. "I was an awful swine tonight—two or three of 'em. Awfully sorry and all that, old girl. You're not very fierce, are you?"

I answered the meaning not the words of his jargon.

"Not very," I returned with a light little laugh. "Are you coming back here tonight?"

"I can't very well, now," he returned doubtfully. "I've taken a room at a hotel, and I'm telephoning from it."

His tone told me that a little encouragement from me would bring him, but I was in no mood for a reconciliation scene.

"No, of course not," I acquiesced promptly. "When are you going to the farm?"

"When are you?" he countered.

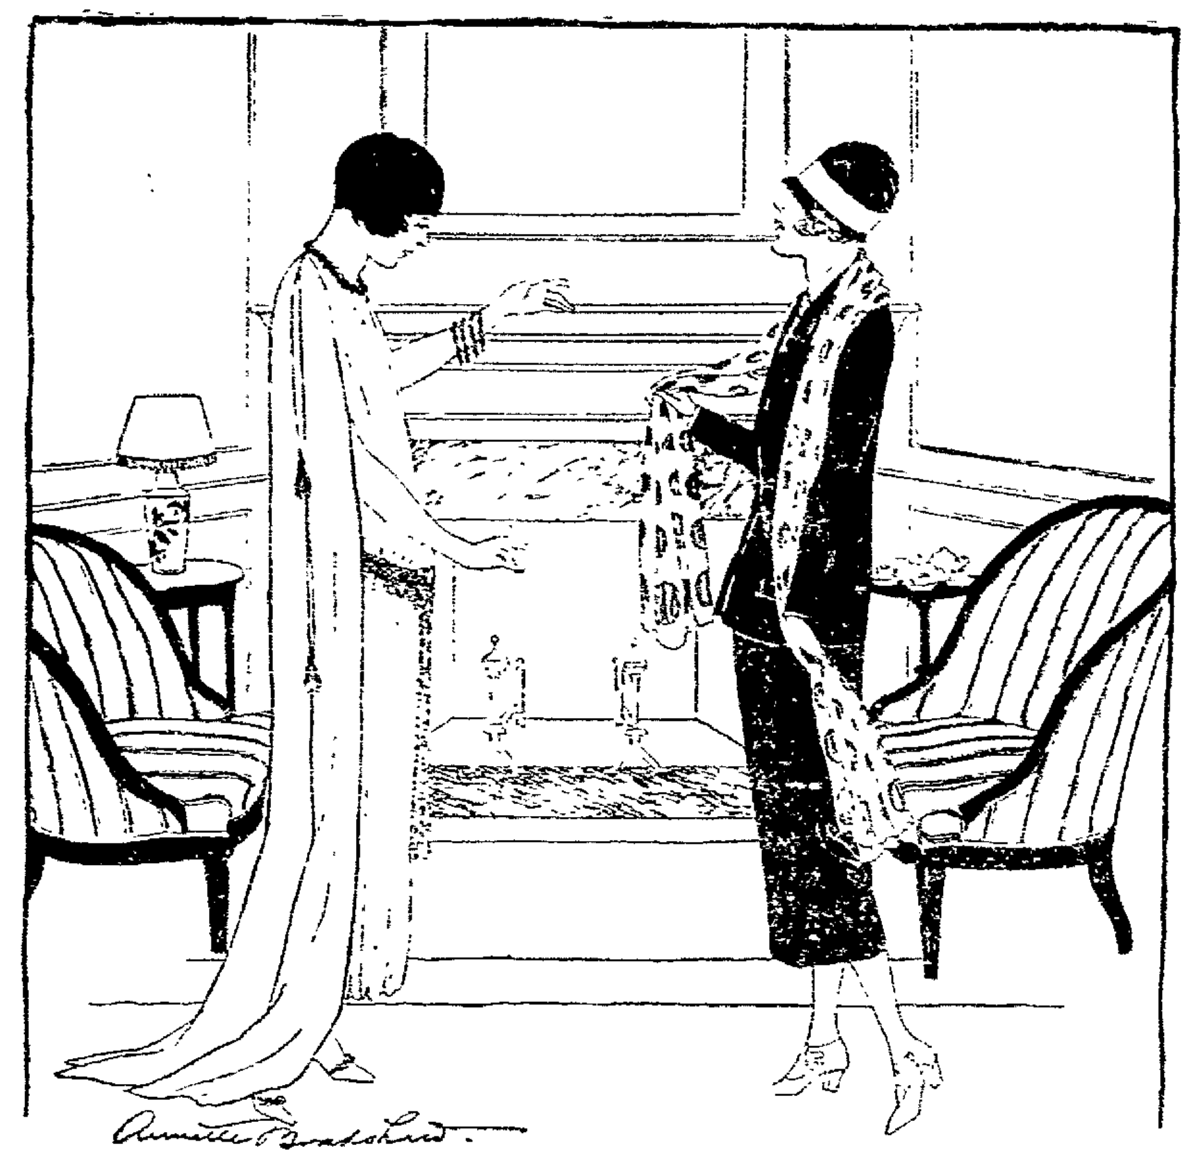

"Tomorrow morning, with a stop over at the Durkees'. I'll be home on that last train."

"I'll go out on the first train and meet you at Bridgehampton station," he said. "Good night."

Did I fancy it, or had I heard the sound of a kiss in the telephone before he hung up the receiver?

YOUR HEALTH

Beware a Toothache and Dangers of Abscess

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DO you ever count your blessings?

In thinking them over are you able to say, "I have never had a toothache"?

If you can truthfully do so, you are indeed a fortunate mortal.

There are few pains harder to bear than the cutting, throbbing ache of a decayed tooth. The worst thing about this form of suffering is that it is usually unnecessary. At the same time, it is terribly prevalent. It has been estimated that forty per cent of the absences of children from school on account of illness are due to aching teeth. In nearly all of the cases the trouble might be prevented by regular and timely care.

Nature built our teeth to do their work easily and well and to resist disease. She covered each tooth with a very hard and compact substance, the enamel. So long as the enamel is intact, the teeth are capable of masticating without discomfort or effort any substance included in the normal food of man. Likewise, they will withstand the extremes of heat or cold without damage.

Like every other material in nature, the enamel may be damaged. There are certain substances which have the power to injure or destroy this protective enamel. Chief among these substances are the acids formed by the fermentation of food.

The mouth is constantly filled with germs that come to it from the fingers, from the air, from everything touching it. Some of these germs have the power of converting certain foods into lactic acid.

This is particularly true of sugar and starches. When foods containing large amounts of these substances—such as fresh bread, pie crust, cake, chocolates and other sweets—are eaten and the teeth are not cleansed afterward, the acid forming germs go immediately to work on the material which is left lodged on the teeth.

It is only a question of time before your neglect is paid for. Ulceration or abscess of the tooth results. This may be followed by any of the far-reaching ills which are due to this formation anywhere in the body.

There may be a swelling at the root of the tooth and in the face. As in the case of any other abscess, when this condition is found at the root of a tooth, the pus must be drained. For this work, the dentist must be consulted.

For the immediate relief of the pain, until the dentist can be reached, hot water may be held in the mouth, or rolls of gauze dipped in hot water may be held against the mouth. Never apply hot fomentations to the outside of the face for the toothache. This may soften the tissues and draw the pus to the skin surface, with the result of an ugly scar in the cheek.

"Counter irritation" may be used. That is, a mildly irritating drug may be applied to draw the blood to the surface.

Do not be content with the relief of the pain. So long as you have a diseased tooth you are in danger of pus absorption, with all the evils that follow such self-poisoning.

Answers to Health Questions

H. L. K. Q.—I have been advised to take sulphur as a blood purifier. Do you believe that this is harmful in any way?

2—What would cause a girl to groan in her sleep when she feels perfectly all right?

A.—No, sulphur is not harmful to take as a blood purifier.

2—This may be due to constipation, nervousness or intestinal disorder. Have an examination by your physician to determine the cause.

W. C. T. Q.—I had an operation for appendicitis about a year ago and five months later had another operation for adhesions. What causes this condition?

A.—Adhesions are bands of tissue, the result of inflammation, sometimes caused by an operation. When two inflamed or raw surfaces are left in contact there is likely to be union and the formation of adhesions.

J. K. Q.—I am very nearsighted and would like to know how to correct this trouble.

2—I am seventeen years of age and am five feet five inches tall. What should I weigh?

* * *

MRS. H. W. S. Q.—Last Winter my husband had blood poisoning in his right limb and now it aches all the time. What would you advise?

A.—I would advise you to consult a physician who will find the cause of the pain. It may be due to a foci of infection somewhere. Bad teeth, tonsils and intestinal trouble frequently cause symptoms such as you describe.

MISS C. M. Q.—How can I increase the growth of my eyelashes?

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

Illustrated by Neva Harrison

DORIS MEETS MRS. PAINTED BEAUTY.

"WILL you look here!" exclaimed Doris to Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Make-believe Land, one day while they were rambling through the woods. "Who could have put this funny-looking little thing among the hairs on this plant?"

Doris pulled out a queer little thing, barrel-shaped, yellowish-green in color, with vertical ribs on its surface. "Who in the world poked that funny looking thing in here, anyway?" she asked.

"I did, of course," replied a silvery voice, and the most beautiful butterfly Doris had ever seen lighted on the straw-like flower.

"Why, if it isn't Mrs. Painted Beauty, herself," laughed Happy Giggles, and he at once introduced Doris, who couldn't take her eyes from the lovely creature.

She was certainly beautiful and she turned around and around so that Doris could see her in every light.

The general tone of the upper surface of her wings was a blushblack with some distinct white markings on the front pair. Along the edge of her back wings ran a row of four dots. The under surface of her wings—she closed her wings so Doris could see them—was even more beautiful. They were spotted and striped with blotches and circles of gray and brown. On each front wing, near the outer edge, were three eye spots in a row and on the hind wing were two bulls-eye circles.

"What is this queer little barrel?" Doris asked, touching the thing with a blade of grass. "Surely not one of your eggs?"

"You guessed right that time," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty. "I find it's the safest place on earth for my eggs, right here in among the hairs of the everlasting plant. It should be time for this egg to hatch as it only needs a few days."

"If It Isn't Mrs. Painted Beauty!"

Just at that instant the queer little greenish yellow barrel-shaped egg opened and out crawled the tiniest caterpillar Doris had ever seen. He was terribly hungry and began at once to devour the hairs along the stem of the plant.

When it reached a leaf it ate all the hairs from underneath, then, with silken threads, made a wee little matted nest.

"A clever child," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty, proudly. "Now he'll stay there until he's stronger, then he will bend those two leaves together and weave silken threads around them to form a sheltered house. In the meantime he'll moult.

"He stays in the leaf until he is full-grown. There he hangs himself by the hind legs, head down. After a few hours the skin along his body will crack, and instead of a caterpillar hanging there you will see just a wee little hard cradle, called a 'chrysalis.' Then in about a fortnight, a butterfly will crawl out."

"Isn't that wonderful!" Doris exclaimed, eagerly, watching the wee little fellow snuggle down under the hairs of the plant, eating his dinner. "One young butterflies never stops to think how they come into the world."

"I'm quite sure if they knew the work it requires to grow into a big butterfly they wouldn't be so ready to destroy us," laughed Mrs. Painted Beauty. "And I guess the bad the caterpillars do when young is offset by the beauty they add to the world when they have changed into butterflies."

Without another word Mrs. Painted Beauty spread her wings and sailed away.

"Well, we'll not harm him," laughed Doris, and she and Happy Giggles went on through the woods in search of new adventure.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

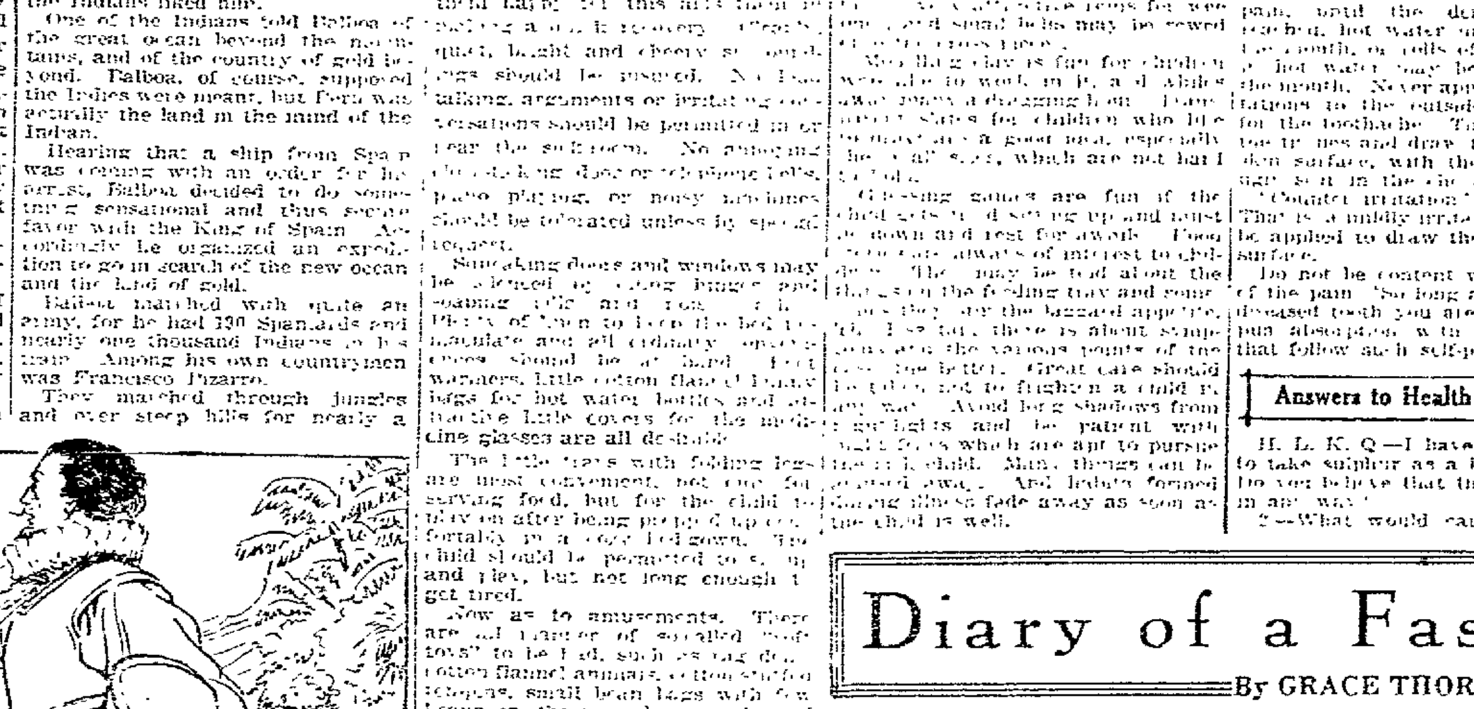

How the Pacific Ocean Was Discovered.

ONE of the big dramatic moments in the history of the world occurred on the 25th of September, 1513. On this day Vasco Nunez de Balboa and his band of daring Spaniards, after toiling for a month up the steep slopes of the Isthmian range, reached the summit of that peak in Darien. From there they first saw, spreading out endlessly, the mighty Pacific Ocean, the open road to China and India for which explorers had been vainly searching long before Columbus set out from Spain in 1492.

It was the great moment of Balboa's life, a life soon to be ignominiously extinguished.

Balboa seems to have been one of the kindliest, most courteous and bravest of the Spanish explorers. He was born in Spain about 1475, and made the voyage to the New World in 1501.

There were good-sized towns in a dozen places on the Caribbean in 1500, eight years after the discovery of America. Balboa settled in Hispaniola, which was Columbus's name for Haiti. He tried to be a planter but he had no success with crops and soon got heavily in debt.

Balboa Took Possession in the Name of the King of Spain.

In order to escape his creditors, Balboa concealed himself in one of the big casks of victuals being sent aboard the ships of an expedition under Enciso which sailed from Hispaniola in 1510 for San Sebastian.

The stowaway revealed himself when the ship was at sea, and being known as a good fighting man Enciso [illegible] him as a comrade in arms. … found the settlement … in ruins and no trace of … inhabitants.

Balboa then suggested that they go to Darien, where he had touched on his original voyage from Spain, and make a settlement there. His proposal was accepted and a town called Saint Mary's of Darien was founded. In a year or so Balboa rose to supreme power in this little colony. He was just and fair, and the Indians liked him.

One of the Indians told Balboa of the great ocean beyond the mountains, and of the country of gold beyond. Balboa, of course, supposed the Indies were meant, but Peru was actually the land in the mind of the Indian.

Hearing that a ship from Spain was coming with an order for his arrest, Balboa decided to do something sensational and thus secure favor with the King of Spain. Accordingly he organized an expedition to go in search of the new ocean and the land of gold.

Balboa marched with quite an army, for he had 190 Spaniards and nearly one thousand Indians in his train. Among his own countrymen was Francisco Pizarro.

They marched through jungles and over steep hills for nearly a month before coming in sight of the great sheet of water. The ocean was utterly calm and peaceful when Balboa first saw it and he named it "Pacific" for that reason.

When they had descended to the seashore, Balboa waded out into the water and took possession of it in the name of the King of Spain.

Balboa remained nearly a month on the coast, collecting loot of all sorts from the native settlements, and finally returned to Darien. He sent messengers to the King with gifts and was rewarded by the honor of … the title "Admiral of the Pacific."

Nevertheless, an expedition was sent from Spain under Pedrarias to take over the governorship of Darien. Pedrarias got possession of Balboa by treachery and had him executed on a charge of treason in … 1517. This was Balboa's reward for discovering the Pacific Ocean.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—I am a girl in my teens. I am in love with a young man two years my senior. I love him very dearly. On Saturday night he asked if he might take me to the movies and I consented, but my parents objected to my keeping company with any one. I feel that I could not love any one else. My parents did not find out about my going with him. He has a fine character and people say he is a nice young man. He asked if I would not have a talk with my parents. How can I get my parents to allow him to call on me at the house? I would rather bring him to the house than stand on the street corner because I think it more ladylike, but my parents disapprove.

2.—Do you think it is wrong for a young man to kiss you?

3.—Do you think it is right for a young man to take a girl to the movies without her parents' knowing it?

ANXIOUSLY WAITING.

ANXIOUSLY WAITING:

1.—Evidently your parents disapprove of your having company because you are too young. However, why not talk to them and tell them of the young man and then be guided by their wishes? You may rest assured that whatever they say is for your good and you should be guided by their advice.

2.—It is improper to allow a young man to kiss you unless you are engaged to him.

3.—Most decidedly it is not right for you to go anywhere without your parents' knowledge and consent.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

What are you going to do when you love a young man and he says he loves you, but whenever you see him on the porch or anywhere he goes into the house. Is this bashfulness or just love?

PUZZLED KID.

PUZZLED KID: Possibly it is simply bashfulness on the part of the young man.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

A Code Of Business Ethics

A COMMITTEE of the United States Chamber of Commerce has drafted a code of business ethics, based on "the material needs of mankind," which will be submitted to the convention of the chamber at Cleveland next month.

The convention's action may not be predicted, but if adopted it is altogether improbable that such an ideal polity will suddenly become effective. For the code is, indeed, a counsel of perfection. Nevertheless, there are two items in the draft which ought to command the grave approval of business.

The recommendation that "corporate forms do not absolve from or alter the moral obligations of individuals" must become an actual practice if the corporation is to survive. That individuals have hidden behind the impersonality of this legal creature, have found in this impersonality license or justification for acts which as individuals they would have hesitated to perform is a commonplace that hardly needs to be stated. It is in protest of just such pleading and practice that we now have the aphorism that "guilt is personal."

The last item in the code should especially challenge not only the conscience but the acumen of the business man. It reads: "Business should render restrictive legislation unnecessary thru so conducting itself as to deserve and inspire public confidence."

Sincere compliance with this admonition would do more to allay unrest and calm the turbulence of the times than all the coercive or remedial laws that could be written. The approximation of this ideal is probably the one chance of permanency that remains to the present economic structure.

Thaw

A Philadelphia jury has declared Harry Thaw sane. The facts brot out in the hearing—not the experts' interpretation of them—indicated that he is as insane now as he was when he murdered Stanford White. Or the other alternative may be taken—that is that the man was as sane on the day of the murder as the jury yesterday found him to be, in which case he should have been convicted and executed. This on-and-off theory of insanity ought by this time to be pretty thoroly frayed, as should the justice-cheating "brain storm" defense. The whole defense of Thaw in his trial for murder was based on the theory that he acted on a purely rational motive—indeed that is the claim he made, or that was made for him. Yet the jury accepted the "brain storm" defense.

If he is released he will, it is said, have to answer to a criminal charge in New York. It will be interesting to see whether, if tried, the "brain storm" defense can again be made to serve. There is, of course, no telling when such a disturbance may seize him, nor was there any evidence offered which even tended to show that Thaw is not as much subject to "brain storms" as ever. It is a pity that the public should be compelled to give so much attention to so worthless a person, but as there are important principles involved there is no escape from the disagreeable necessity.

One of those principles has to do with the question of legal insanity. From the extreme medical point of view there are few men in the world who are not insane, and it is this view that has tended to prevail. But also there are few men who do not know what they are doing when they are doing it, do not realize and intend the consequences of their own acts. From the legal point of view such men ought to be held sane.

Perhaps the courts will from now on show less respect for the "brain storm" defense, and it may even be that juries will no longer be influenced by it. It is somewhat surprising that Thaw should have been so long restrained. The rule has been that those who escape conviction on the plea of insanity are immediately freed.

Senatorial Irresponsibility

IT is taking the President, the State Department, the press, the churches and the peace organizations to turn back the tide of international wrath and agitation precipitated by the action of the United States Senate following the ill-considered misinterpretation of a phrase by Senator Johnson of California and Senator Lodge, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Since the Senate voted on the exclusion issue Ambassador Hanihara has explained in a formal statement to Secretary Hughes that no "veiled threat" was contained in his expression of "grave consequences" as included in his first communication on the subject. Secretary Hughes in reply not only accepts the explanation but declares he "had no doubt" of the friendly and proper meaning of the phrase as intended by the Ambassador. This is virtually to say that he never had any doubt.

What a simple thing it would have been for the Senate leaders, after consulting with the State Department, to have accepted Hanihara's words as Hughes accepted them instead of bringing on an open discussion and a vote which has stirred Japan to a fever of injured national pride, which has revived talk of war, invoked a boycott against California products, embarrassed and endangered the lives of Americans in Japan and, as Senator Reed of Pennsylvania said, has undone the accomplishments of 20 years of diplomacy.

It has been popular in the past to damn the American press as the most dangerous aid to jingoism and a menace to international peace. In the present crisis Japanese Foreign Minister Matsui comments: "One feature of the situation which is most comforting to Japan is the sympathetic attitude of a majority of the American newspapers. The Japanese people may still place hope in the greatness of American character."

The Senate, thru its ratifying power, has a responsibility in foreign affairs second only to that of the President. The present condition is a fair demonstration of its irresponsibility and local-mindedness. Senator Johnson's jingoism is a plain case of anti-Japanese constituency. Senator Lodge's principal fame rests on his readiness to exploit international relations for political ends.

New York Day-by-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 25. — Thoughts while strolling around New York: Two more Mah Jong shops. Tony Drexel, the avenue fashion plate. Jaunty tennis players. Hotel portico flirts with the set grip of vasuity — like a dog scratching a flea.

Yong Oscar Hammerstein, II. And there's Lionel Barrymore. The mad luncheon hour. You can see wine coolers under tables from the sidewalk. The smart horse and carriage. Giggley flappers with hard faced men who smile only with their lips.

Pompous men who look like bankers but may be bootleggers. Aeolian Hall advertises a "mountain symphony." The old cabbie who is the immage of Lloyd George. Save for his red nose. A veiled woman leaves a swami's parlor.

The matinee crowds. Always bright eyed and chatty. Valentino and his German police dog. Wonder what happened to that word "scofflaw?" And to the old fashioned dinner pail? A second hand store has a pile of spats in the window.

Something strange for New York — a brightly painted street car. Most of them are ready for the scrap pile. A fellow greets a girl with "Hello, good looking!" Bet he goes to vaudeville. Vivacious shop girls, like new sprung fountains, gushing up to meet life at the brim. Jazz jagged Janes.

The ambulance comes for a man who has fainted in a cigar store telephone booth. A great criminal lawyer who walks along pulling the heavy forelock of his iron gray hair. Rushing tourists who wonder how New York ever stands the pace.

A tea room window sign reads: "Canaries sing while you eat." The old woman in Times Square who wears a black sunbonnet and sings "Maggie." A manicure parlor for "Men Only." An imperious headwaiter who now owns a half block building. Bought with tips.

In Little Italy residents will fight when the epithet of "wop" is applied to them. Shoe shiners and small tradesmen who come from Italy accept the term with no shortened from Wapparousa, a Sicilian localism for a good-for-nothing fellow. Another term for the Italian is "guinea." It comes from the days when counterfeit coins were brought to England on the boats sailing from Italy. The men who issued the counterfeit gold coins, English guineas were called by the name of the coin and gradually the British extended the name to all Italians—but it is not resented as much as the term "wop."

New York is noted as the home of the "four flush." It reaches the highest peak here. It is expressed at times in handing the waiter a fifty dollar bill getting in the front row at the theatre at gouging prices or ringside tables in cafes. Yet there is something intensely human about the man who is given to the "four flush." As a rule he is a man who has made his money by hard work. His early life was in a background of poverty. Now that he has arrived he wants to make a show. He may have a twinge of regret over paying $7 for a necktie but he thinks nothing of paying $5 for a 25 cent bottle of table water.

There is even something human to me about the men who engineer dinners in their honor. This is done almost every week and there are two young men who make a comfortable living getting behind the self inspired dinner for anyone who will put up a guarantee so in case they fail they will not be out any money for their time.

The heaviest sidewalk traffic in New York is in front of the Astor Hotel on Broadway at 11:30 at night when the theatres empty their hordes. The sidewalk and half the street is taken up for about a half hour. Shops there complain they do no business at this time because people cannot get into their shops.

For scientific purposes a motion picture camera capable of making 2500 pictures a second has been constructed.

GETTING SKINNIER EVERY DAY

Something Must be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too

Tens of thousands of thin, rundown men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One women, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back and only 60 cents a box. Ask Wimmer-Arnold Co., Siegrist & Williams, Page & Lorenz or any live pharmacist anywhere.

"Ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets."

WALT MASON

HIGH PRICES

The booze they sell is priced so high a poor man can't get drunk; a beaker of their deadly rye will cost you half a plunk. A man must be absurbly rich if he'd acquired a linn, and roll around in yonder ditch and have all kinds of fun. They used to make their booze of grain, of barley, corn and rye, and one could take his bitters plain, and not go blind or die. The barley and the rye and corn were inexpensive stuff and fifteen cents would buy a horn, and that seemed dear enough. But now they're using costly dyes, and drugs of noxious smell, to make the bourbons and the ryes the bootleg dealers sell. It costs to manufacture booze, the way they make it now, to gather up old overshoes, and horns of goat and cow, to boil tin cans and cast-off hats, the rinds of rancid cheese, to get the blood of vampire bats, the sap of upas trees. One cannot get without expense, an alligator's nest, the rusty barb wire from a fence, that gives the bitters zest. One cannot without money buy a vat of purple ink, a crosscut saw, a keg of lye, to make the modern drink. And so the price of flowing bowls is up, and up to stay, and only men with ample rolls can kill themselves that way. But one may to the hydrant trek, in peace and great content, and pour three gallons down his neck, and not cough up a cent.

"My Rheumatism is gone—"

There's glorious joy in knowing this—that more Red-Blood-Cells stops Rheumatism, and that S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells.

the wrong idea about rheumatism for 15 years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S.! Say what you will, I never knew such startling results were possible. Well, folks, besides knocking out my rheumatism it gave me back some of the strength I used to have way back! I've got a better color in my face, my appetite is dandy. I don't use my crutches any more. I'm walking around straight-up on two young legs!" S. S. S. makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. By building blood-cells it builds nerve strength for young folks who ought to have more, and for older people who have little. It stops pimples, boils, blackheads, eczema, chases away blood impurities. You can always rely on it. Start S. S. S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is the more economical.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

A POSTMASTER'S PAY

Editor The Tribune:

There are some things X. Y. Z. of your issue of the 19th forgot to mention, and for the benefit of the readers I will state how the lowly fourth class postmaster receives money for his labor and bother.

In the first place the so called salary is limited to $250.00 in any one quarter, second, after $75.00 in one quarter he recives 60c on the dollar up to the next hundred and after that, 40 per cent. Perhaps this has been changed since X. Y. Z. ran the P. O. for Mr. Blank.

Perhaps X. Y. Z. is trying to set the price on eggs in his corner. Perhaps he tried to get the post office once and was refused. Perhaps he ran an add when he ran the office "Postage Paid." Who knows?

I wonder if any of the readers know the regulations for our office hours? We are on duty as postmaster during the regular business hours of the town, and in my case that is from 6:30 A. M. to as late as 12:00 P. M. We get nothing but legal holidays and Sundays off. There are many, many trips to the office, money orders to write, reports to make out, money to send in, Treasury Savings Certificates to sell, and a thousand and one other things to do. My post office work will average not less than 3½ hours daily, and last year after all the bricks and saw dust I shipped I received the large sum of $528.30.

Yours truly,
FORREST S. WINTERMUTE,
Postmaster.

Further Light on Broadhead Expedition Given in Letter from Dr. Montgomery of Pa.

T. L. Montgomery, of the Coshocton National Bank, has received, from his brother Dr. E. E. Montgomery, of Philadelphia, a clipping from the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger, which gives interesting facts on Colonel Daniel Broadhead's expedition to Coshocton in 1781, in addition to those given in the first of the series of Coshocton co. historical sketches being run in the Tribune. It relates the important part played by the three leading chiefs of the Delaware tribe, in the Indian warfare waged in this section.

Until December 1779 the Delaware tribe [illegible] frontier warfare.

In the autumn of 1778 the United States government [illegible] an alliance with the three principal chiefs of the Delawares — White Eyes, Killbuck and Captain Pipe, which was outwardly observed for two years. White Eyes and Killbuck were friendly to the American cause, whereas Captain Pipe was [illegible].

The death of White Eyes, from smallpox, at Pittsburgh, in November 1778, was followed by the election of Killbuck as the principal chief of the Delawares. Chief Killbuck found himself the leader of the minority of his nation, yet his influence was sufficient to delay for two years, the union of the Delawares with the hostile nations.

However, in February 1781, while Killbuck was on a mission to Fort Pitt, a council was held at Coshocton, and the Delawares yielded to the pressure of Captain Pipe and voted to join in the warfare against the colonists.

Killbuck was afraid to return to Coshocton, as he learned of threats against his life, so he made his home with the Moravians and their converted Indians at Salem, on the western branch of the Tuscarawas River, fourteen miles below New Philadelphia. Here he professed Christianity and was baptized and received the Christian name William Henry, in honor of a distinguished citizen of Lancaster, Pa. He was afterward commissioned by the United States Congress and was proud to call himself "Colonel Henry." When he removed his family to Salem he took also with him the family of White Eyes and other Delaware Indians, including the aged warriors Big Cat and Nonowland.

Killbuck wrote a long letter to Colonel Broadhead informing him of the hostile action of the council at Coshocton. The missionary, the Rev. John Heckewelder, who penned the letter, also sent another by the same messenger to John Montour, in which he suggested an expedition against Coshocton.

Killbuck and the Delaware warriors who remained faithful to him subsequently took an active part in the Broadhead expedition, acting as guides for the troops from Wheeling to Coshocton, and assisting in the slaughter of the Indians and the burning of their village at Coshocton, April 20, 1781.

As a result of the Coshocton campaign the hostile Delawares migrated to the headwaters of the Sandusky and other places farther westward, while the adherents of Chief Killbuck and those friendly to the Americans moved to Pittsburgh and erected their rude wigwams on Smoky Island, at the northern side of the junction of the Allegheny and Monogahela Rivers.

Large Field Corn Makes Best Silage

Silage corn gave a little larger tonnage than common field corn in tests at the Ohio Experiment Station, but the field corn carried a much larger percentage of grain giving it a greater feed value per ton

These experiments cover a period of five years in which the different varieties of corn were grown in alternate strips and harvested and weighed separately. The average difference in weight calculated on the same dry matter basis was less than one ton in favor of the silage variety. In the feeding tests, the field corn proved the more valuable

Considering both yield and feeding value, the larger field varieties will give better results than either very early maturing field corn or the big ensilage varieties. The Station dairymen would choose a field corn that would make use of the entire growing season and nearly mature an abundance of ears before the early dates for killing frosts.

TRADES CLASS AIDS IN DISPLAY

Attracting considerable attention from pedestrians on Main-st this week is the unique window display at the Gray Hardware Company.

The display represents a modern country home and well-arranged grounds surrounding.

Before a canvas showing a rural landscape in spring are a miniature stuccoed bungalow and garage. The buildings were constructed by the trades class of Coshocton high school, under the direction of C. A. Eckert, trades instructor, and were "stuccoed" by Tom Gray, with beans of various sizes and colors to bring out desired design and color effects.

New electric lights to be worn on the back of an automobilist's hand to signal to following drivers at night automatically are turned on as a user, extending his fingers, moves a switch.

DON'T USE "MUSSY" SALVES FOR ECZEMA!

New Snow-White, Greaseless Treatment, Brings Quick Relief—Costs 35 Cents. Money Back If It Fails

Just because you suffer from itching Eczema or some other skin irritation, it isn't necessary to "daub" yourself all up with some greasy, "smelly" salve.

The new, better and most pleasant way is to use Noxzema, a snow-white, greaseless and stainless cream that penetrates at once and gives instant relief. Thousands of people who are now free from Pimples and Rashes, use it regularly and their skin is as clear and velvety as that of a healthy child. The very first application takes out the fire and stops the itching, then the soreness and inflammation go and the first thing you know your troublesome skin irritation has entirely disappeared.

A generous trial size of Noxzema can be obtained from any druggist for 35 cents. Better try it today.

[illegible] CHARLES M. DAWSON, [illegible] Auditor.

The Belgian government plans to create a permanent organization that will enable that country to maintain an important position in international aerial transportation.

Charles Murphy Tammany Czar, Dies in N. York

NEW YORK, April 25. Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and for nearly a quarter of a century one of the most powerful Democratic leaders of the country, died today.

His death on the eve of the Democratic national convention due to assemble here in June created a profound sensation in political circles. It had been universally expected and conceded that Murphy would play an important part in framing the Democratic national ticket for 1924.

History will record Charles Francis Murphy as one of Tammany's greatest leaders and a Democrat who in his time played a star role on the country's political stage for more than twenty years.

His rise to the head of the most powerful single political organization in the country reads like fiction. Like so many of his predecessors in the famous wigwam on Fourteenth-st, he came up from the ranks, up from the lower East Side of New York that has produced so many colorful personalities in state and national affairs.

The east side is poverty and Murphy came from it. He was a hand in a wire factory as a boy. Later he quit this job and drove one of the old Fourteenth-st horse cars. From this he graduated to the saloon business where he prospered, finally becoming the owner of four establishments and it was in this environment that Murphy became absorbed in politics.

When Murphy was a youth he was a ball player of considerable neighbhood fame. The east side in those days had high respect for physical prowess as well as political.

Murphy became captain of a district team, and it was recorded that under his leadership his club went thru an entire season without a defeat. All this time Murphy was adding to his popularity and his acquaintance in the populous East Side. He formed a club finally of his ball players and their followers and it grew in power, until at last it became a political factor.

This was Murphy's start on a career that was to lead him to the heights of power in not only state but national politics. His first real fling at politics came when he backed Edward Hagen, an independent candidate for the assembly in his district. Hagen was elected and the organization defeated. Consequently the organization decided to take the rising young Irishman into its counsels.

Mayor Van Wyck, the Tammany mayor of New York, soon after this gave Murphy one of the few political offices he ever held. He made him dock commissioner. After this Murphy sold his saloons and went into the contracting and trucking business with his brother.

From this time on Murphy's rise in New York politics was little short of phenomenal. Thru the great power he wielded in municipal affairs he became known as the maker and breaker of mayors. Consequently in 1902, when Richard Croeker laid down the leadership of Tammany hall there was little or no question as to who should succeed him. Murphy stepped into his shoes and from that day on he wielded a powerful influence in municipal and state politics such as few men had. He was the "boss," the "chief" and "the czar."

Murphy was within two months of being 60 years old. He was born on June 20, 1858, the son of John M. Murphy.

Opening Dance Well Attended

An exceptionally large number of persons attending the opening of The Coshocton Lake Park dancing auditorium Thursday evening. The dance was the first of the season, and the crowd that flocked to the park demonstrated that it is still growing in popularity.

The hall was especially decorated for the occasion. The feature of the evening, a balloon dance, was won by [illegible] the Misses Dora and Leone [illegible] of [illegible] Walnut st. The prize was a $5 gold piece.

The dance Thursday evening officially opened the summer season, and dances will be held at the park on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings of every week until the end of the season.

Insurgents

ed to certain defeat in the senate," Brookhart said. "We are organized to fight to the finish for the highest rates possible in the upper brackets. We are for all the reduction possible on normal rates and for high taxes upon the wealthy who are able to give substantially to the support of the government.

"We aren't interested in any compromise whatever, with any group in the senate. We will not compromise. We think that the country demands that the tax upon the rich be increased, and the tax upon the man with the average income be reduced materially."

Brookhart intimated, however, that if the Progressives are unable to force adoption of the 50 per cent rate, they would fall back upon the Democratic maximum, which, he said, "is better than the 37½ per cent passed by the house and the 25 per cent proposed by Secretary Mellon and reported by the finance committee."

The insurgent tax program, Brookhart added, also included restoration of the 40 per cent maximum tax upon estates; a 40 per cent levy upon gifts; a 14 per cent corporation tax, without repeal of the capital stock tax as reported by the committee; and an excise profits tax.

Opponents of Daugherty to Aid Johnson

CLEVELAND, O., April 25.—An appeal that Ohio Republicans, opposed to former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, center their votes upon state Senator George H. Bender, one of the Johnson candidates for delegate at-large to the Republican National convention next June, was being sent out today throout the state.

More than 1,000 voters, men and women, have signed the appeal, which, by the Johnson organization, is the first open admission that the nomination of President Coolidge is assured, and that Ohio is sure to add its votes to his total at the Cleveland convention.

"The question in the minds of the people," the statement read, "is not whether President Calvin Coolidge will be nominated. That is settled. The question is whether the voters will elect Harry M. Daugherty a delegate to the national convention."

The statement asserts that Daugherty's defeat "would aid in purging the Republican party and in restoring confidence in the party's integrity."

Senator Hiram Johnson was to appear here at noon today to discuss campaign issues before the City Club at a noon luncheon. His last appearance in Ohio before the primaries will be at Toledo tonight.
